HUGHES NOW TRIES TO OPEN MEDITERRANEAN AND CLOSED DOOR TO AFRICAN CONTINENT

Our Sudden Intervention in the Delicate Tangier Question, With a Demand for the "Open Door" to Morocco Is Highly Significant—Follows Our Victories in Preventing Imperial Monopolies in the Far East and the Near East—We Have Sweeping Rights in Africa Which Have Been Neglected But Kept Alive—Our Action Also Increased Our Participation in Mediterranean Affairs

BY EUGENE J. YOUNG

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—"Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead," were the words with which President Roosevelt startled the Republican National Convention in 1904 when he felt he needed something to stir up enthusiasm for his renomination. This ultimatum to the Sultan of Morocco served its purpose. The convention hurrahed over an exhibition of a vigorous foreign policy that protected an American citizen, even tho Ion Perdicaris's Americanism was not even skin deep.

At the time it was regarded generally, even among Roosevelt's friends, as a shrewd political device. Nobody thot much of Morocco; and when the Sultan saw to it that Perdicaris was released there were a few more hurrahs and the incident was almost forgotten.

Yet at this moment America is beginning a new and highly significant chapter in Morocco and the Perdicaris incident was part of its prologue. Into the highly delicate negotiations which Britain, France and Italy have been conducting over the Moorish port of Tangier we have suddenly thrust ourselves with a note from Mr. Hughes urging that the principle of the "Open Door" be observed in the settlement of the questions at issue. We shall hear a great deal more about Tangier and Morocco and African questions in general before we are thru with what our Secretary of State has started by his newest application of his world policies.

FOLLOWS SUCCESS IN OTHER FIELDS

In the Washington Arms Conference early last year Mr. Hughes propped wide the "Open Door" to China. At the Lausanne conference he did the same for Turkey and the mandated lands in the Near East and assured it for Persia. Now, following exactly similar methods, he is undertaking to apply the principle to Africa. The European nations have closed most of the doors to that great continent and perhaps they have believed America would overlook what they had done because of the pressure of other problems. If they harbored any such hopes they have been emphatically disabused.

At the Lausanne conference Mr. Hughes, thru Ambassador Child, laid down this doctrine:

"The overwhelming sentiment of

CONVENIENCES FOR PUBLIC PROVIDED AT CENTRAL BANK

A newly furnished ladies' rest room, a small conference room, a larger room for committee meetings and a private telephone booth had been thrown open to the use of the public Saturday by the Central Bank in its building on the southeast corner of Sixth and Main-sts.

The new public conveniences are the sermlufoersev the result of several weeks work of remodeling and redecorating in the basement and first floor corridor of the building.

The main lobby of the banking room has been extended also. At the rear end of the lobby is the private telephone booth and the small conference room.

At the foot of the stairs leading from the rear end of the lobby is the ladies' waiting room, and the larger meeting room.

Both rooms are nicely furnished, and may be used by the public at any time, members of the banking firm announced Saturday.

A sanitary drinking fountain in the main lobby, has also been recently installed for the accommodation of the bank's visitors.

EXHIBITORS RAPIDLY FILL AVAILABLE SPACE AT THE FAIRGROUNDS FOR BIG WEEK

The Coshocton fair grounds is fast taking on a fair-like aspect.

Pervading the atmosphere of the grounds already Saturday evening were the bawl of calves, the crow of roosters and the smell of hamburger and onions. The pumpkins and the corn were rolling in, down along a growing midway the Ferris-wheel was rising sky-ward, while thru the gate sped trucks and wagons bearing pigs and sheep and "everything." Only the fakir, the horse-race and the endless surge of hundreds of "just folks" were required to bring again those ne'er-to-be-forgotten thrills of childhood.

Down at the race-horse barn the old languor prevails. For the old bunch are all back. Harry Urban, Al. Walters, Carnes and Colville are there. Then there are a number of new faces. Plaxico from Columbus has 7 Grand Circuit performers; and Merrell, Jones, Price and Miller, from Newark. Bash from Strasburg, Tibbetts from Cleveland and Timberlake from Woodsfield all have "strings." Most interesting, however, is the fact that 8 local stables will be represented. "Uncle Jack" Randles, Clint. Burrell, Alva Nichols, Sam Clark, Frank Buzzard, "Bill" Clark and Charley Smith are on hands and Quin. Barnes is back with Gold Bar, that won at Logan this week. All counted, more than 90 racers will start. Several were out "jogging" on the new track Saturday afternoon.

All kinds of stock except horses will be here in plenty. Mrs. W. B. Miller said, "Every kid in town is coming with a pony." In the cattle department Stevu from St. Marys and Lake from Frazeysburg will show Shorthorns, Clark from Freeport is here with a herd of Angus, Wilkinson and Ryan and Price from Bellfountaine will each show Jerseys, Campbell from Flushing has a good herd of Guernseys and several Coshocton-co herds will be represented.

Blamer from Johnstown and Hesket and Mitchell from Fulton are here again with sheep; while Lee and Anderson and Scheetz will represent this county's flocks.

The swine barn will be largely

OFFICIALS PROTEST AT DELAY IN PAVING OF LOCAL HIGHWAY

Preparations for the laying of brick on the inter-county highway from Conesville to Adams Mills were being made Saturday.

Seemingly inexcusable delay in the completion of the road has aroused the residents of that section of the county to a place where they are demanding immediate action.

Prosecutor Joseph B. Shepler said Saturday that he had been asked numerous times to take the contract away from the man who now holds it. He pointed out that county officials have nothing to do with the contract, but that it is in the hands of the state highway department. He added, however, that he and former County Surveyor John Frew had called the attention of state highway officials to the case, and had asked that the contract be cancelled.

The cost of cancelling the contract and advertising for new bids for the completion of the road would be more than the cost of allowing the present contractor to complete it now, the highway department members told the local men, and therefore such atcion would not be advisable.

The road was to have been completed a year ago. An extension of time has been granted the contractor by the highway department.

COSHOCTON Y. W. HEADQUARTERS TO MOVE FEBRUARY 1

The Coshocton Young Woman's Christian Association now located at 438 Main-st will occupy new quarters on the second floor of the I. O. O. F. building on Main St. near Sixth after February 1, 1923.

The Coshocton Association during the four years that have elapsed since its affiliation with the National Y. W. C. A., has grown to such proportions that the present quarters are no longer adequate and the continued expansion of the work necessitated additional space.

Recently the special committee appointed to go into the matter of buying property or renting larger quarters reported that the plans submitted by the I. O. O. F. were admirably adapted to the needs of the association. At a meeting of the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. there was a unanimous vote to accept the recommendation of the special committee and the association will move into the new quarters immediately on their completion about the first of the year.

The plans include club rooms, offices, rest rooms, lobby, a large assembly hall, cloak rooms and completely equipped kitchen and will give ample floor space required for additional activities being undertaken by the local association.

PAPERS BY BUS TO NEWCOMERSTOWN AND W. LAFAYETTE

The annulment of train No. [illegible], leaving Coshocton at 6.16 and carrying Tribunes to Newcomerstown and West Lafayette will not affect mail subscribers to the paper at these points. Arrangements have been made to convey the mail packages to these two towns by bus leaving Coshocton at 5 o'clock, p. m. every day.

By this arrangement the post office packages of the Tribune will reach their destinations approximately an hour earlier than they have in the past by railway mail service. West Laayette subscribers should be able to get their evening paper by 5.30 and Newcomerstown subscribers by 6.00 p. m. Carrier packages for these two points will leave Coshocton as usual on the 4 o'clock bus and be distributed as in the past.

NON-PARTISAN TARIFF AIM OF DENVER MEET

Western Tariff Assn. to Hold Convention There Oct. 3 and 4

TO BAR POLITICS

Industry Alarmed Over Possible Use of Flexible Clauses

DENVER, Sept. 29—"To protect and promote the interests of those engaged in productive pursuits and to equalize the cost of production."

With this slogan, and the avowed purpose of urging upon the national administration at Washington the adoption of a permanent tariff policy, the Western Tariff Association, recently organized, will hold its first convention in this city on October 3 and 4.

The call for the convention, issued by Frank J. Hagenbarth, of Salt Lake City, stresses the fact that the tariff association is non-partisan and that every effort will be made to take the tariff "out of national politics."

All producing organizations, chambers of commerce, farm, labor, civic, women's, trade and press organizations, bank associations, fraternal societies, governors, commissioners of agriculture, commissioners of labor, commissioners of mining and commissioners of banking are invited to attend the coming convention and are urged to appoint delegates who will "give consideration to the tariff problems of the Western producers."

The official call states that the Western Tariff Congress is assembled for the following purposes:

1. To provide a non-partisian forum for the discussion of public policies as they affect the progress and prosperity of Western industry, especially with respect to tariff levies.

2. To discuss the flexible provisions of the Tariff act.

3. To invite the Chambers of Commerce, the press, the banks and all civic and political bodies to join with the producers in an effort to remove the tariff from partisan policies and to adopt a permanent American tariff policy which will equalize the cost of production in this with foreign countries, preserve American industry against destructive foreign competition, maintain American standards of living and wages in every line of effort, and to oppose a tariff policy that discriminates against any section, class or product.

4. To oppose a revision of the present Tariff act at this time.

It is expected also that an attempt will be made to bring about

MRS. MARIA KISER, OCTOGENARIAN, IS CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Maria Kiser, aged 86, one of the city of Coshocton's earliest residents, died at her home at 1103 east Chestnut-st. Her death was due to the infirmities of age.

Maria Kiser was the daughter of Timothy and Hanora McDermott. She was born in Roscommon, Ireland, August 12, 1837.

She sailed for America in 1856, landing in New York, where she spent two years of her life. In 1858 she came to Coshocton where she has made her home since.

One year after her arrival here, in 1859, she was married to John Freemen. He was killed by a boiler explosion in a local paper mill on May 16, 1866. Four children born to this union preceded their mother to the grave.

On July 27, 1869 she was united in marriage with George Kiser. He died November 5, 1909. Three of the four children born to the union survive. One son, Mato, died in infancy. The three surviving children are Mr. Robert Hagans, Philip and Charles T. Kiser, all of Coshocton.

Four grandchildren, Walter Hagans, of Los Angeles, Mrs. Harvey Grant of 311 south Seventh-st., Mrs. Ralph Rodgers, 1125 East Main-st and Leota Hagans of 1103 east Chestnut-st and two great grandchildren, Robert Rodgers and Jack Grant also survive.

Mrs. Kiser was a life-long member of the Sacred Heart church.

Funeral services will be held in the Sacred Heart church Tuesday morning at 8:30 and interment will be made in Oak Ridge cemetery.

SLOW PAYMENT OF BILLS IS CHECKING BUSINESS—BABSON

Statistician Declares Condition Psychological, Not Economic

ENDLESS CHAIN

Cash Business Sound As Firms Extending Credit Totter

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Sept. 29.—Roger W. Babson has been making a careful analysis of credit conditions based on reports from his various correspondents thruout the United States. His findings reported today are of unusual interest to all business men and investors.

"Careful students of the financial situation are surprised at the action of the 'Reserve Ratio Figures' of the Federal Reserve Banks and the similar figure for the New York banks," says Mr. Babson. "With the tremendous amount of gold in the country and with new gold constantly being mined, it seems strange that this figure should decrease. Furthermore, even altho this is the crop moving season there seems no logical reason why our banks should put out additional currency. There is an abundance of money in the country for all legitimate needs. The only difficulty is that too much of it is being used in illegitimate ways, and too much is being hoarded in sections where it is not being needed. The country does not need to issue more money, but the farmers and legitimate business instead of speculators in stocks, food stuffs, and wearing apparel should have the use of the billions already issued. Eliminate special and unreasonable storage and there will be money enough for every legitimate need in every line of industry.

"Yet this speculation in stocks and commodities does not account

TRAFFIC COP IS PROVED SUCCESS FOR FIRST YEAR

Since the office of traffic cop was created at the request of the city safety department one year ago, Roy Sheeley, who filled the position has made 61 arrests, resulting in the assessment of $2,217.90 in fines and costs, according to the report issued Saturday by Mayor W. S. Tish.

The report was made out by the mayor at the request of the council ordinance committee, which was delegated by president pro tem C. R. Thrapp at the most recent meeting of the city council, to obtain the report.

The council members heard reports of laxity in the enforcement of traffic regulations in the city, and asked the report so that they could get an idea of the duty done by the special traffic officer.

Seventy per cent of the arrests made by Officer Sheeley were for traffic violations, the mayor's report showed while the remainder were for various offenses.

Sheeley went on duty October 15, 1922. He was given a motorcycle for his use about November 26, 1922. The first of July he was taken off of traffic duty, and required to fill the vacancies on the police force as each member took his annual vacation. He resumed his traffic duty for the first time since July 1 Saturday evening.

"A very small per cent of automobile drivers are inclined to be willful violators," Mayor W. S. Tish declared Saturday evening," but there will always be a few who have no respect for rules.

"Traffic in our city has been provided with all the safeguards and precautions that could be expected, and the few damaged cars and injuries that have resulted from auto accidents in the city are proof that traffic in Coshocton is above the average of most cities. Our aim is to improve as fast as possible. Traffic [illegible] is the one of the great problems that every municipality is facing."

IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Mrs. Mary Wagner, aged 60, Chestnut-st, was seriously ill at her home Saturday suffering from the effects of a light stroke. Slight hopes were being entertained for her recovery.

FARMERS NEED LOOK FOR NO FINANCIAL AID IN DISTRESS GROWING OUT OF LOW WHEAT

Appropriations, Subsidies or Extension of Credits Out of Question——Farmers Want Government to Handle Crop As It Did in War Period When $50,000,000 Was Cleared—Growers Cast Longing Eyes On That Sum, in Hope of Borrowing

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Farm relief so far as government appropriation of funds or any form of direct or indirect subsidy is not going to be granted. Gesture of aid and sympathy will be made but at bottom most government officials are convinced that there is little they can do to boost the price of wheat.

The committee of bankers from the wheat growing states comprising the ninth federal reserve district are in conference today with the directors of the war finance corporation. They had their talk with President Coolidge on Thursday. They did not argue for any specific proposal but urged in general that the government do something to improve the position of the wheat-growing farmers.

For one thing, the government is satisfied that it has done all that it can possibly do in the way of extending credits. More money has been lent by the war finance corporation to the wheat growing states than has been given in proportion to other parts of the country. New facilities of credit have been opened up by new legislation at the last session of congress. What then remains? The farmers would like the government to handle the crop for export somewhat as it did during the war. The claim is made that the government made $50,000,000 thru its wheat operations in connection with the war and that this sum might be used as a revolving fund.

But the question asked in Washington is whether the farmers want the government to go into the export business and take a loss for if the world price of wheat is down the government would be unable to sell its wheat at any higher prices

Expect Political Sensation in Exchange Charges

In an address before the American Bankers' Association, in Atlantic City, Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the New York Stock Exchange, told of instances where politicians had demanded money or favors to prevent the introduction of bills in the State Legislature, aimed at the Exchange. Mr. Cromwell was at once summoned before the New York City Grand Jury and is reported to have given the names of the politicians, together with affidavits to substantiate his charges. A political sensation is expected to result.

DAYTON DELCO CO. ROBBED OF $5,400; THIEVES ARRESTED

Confession Obtained and Robbery Thot to Be Part of Nation Wide Plot

DAYTON, Ohio, Sept. 29. Efforts are being made today to connect three men arrested here last night for robbery, with other hold ups of recent date in various parts of the country.

CHANEY IS LYING IN LEAVENWORTH AWAITING ACTION

Charles F. Chaney, former Coshocton automobile dealer, is held in Kansas City, Missouri, in default of $2,000 bond, awaiting trial on a charge of violating the Mann white slave act, according to information in the hands of County Prosecutor Joseph B. Shepler.

Current rumors that Chaney had already been tried, and sentenced to 15 years in the federal prison, are untrue, according to Shepler.

The federal grand jury will meet in Columbus, October 16, Shepler said Saturday, and Chaney will no doubt be indicted then. He has already been indicted by the Coshocton-co grand jury. Shepler believes that after Chaney has been indicted by the federal grand jury, he will be turned over to Coshocton-co authorities for trial here.

Chaney was arrested when he was located in Leavenworth, Kansas in the company of Dorothy Johnson, 15-year-old daughter of James Johnson, of Coshocton. He is accused of having taken the girl from Coshocton on June 30 in a mortgaged automobile.

When apprehended Chaney is reported to have produced a marriage record dated July 15 in Kansas City, showing that he was married to the girl. He has a wife living here. He was located by local authorities and the arrest was made by federal officers after the case had been reported to them by Prosecutor Shepler.

Additional charges of bigamy and taking mortgaged property out of Ohio will probably be filed against him, in the prosecutor's opinion.

SLOW PAYMENT

for the clogging which is taking place today in our credit system. Of the various reasons advanced I believe the fundamental difficulty is due to the fact that people are not paying their bills. Ever since the decline in business, which began a few months ago, there has been a tendency for manufacturers, jobbers, retailers, and consumers to slow up in their payment of bills. Of course, the whole thing is an endless chain. Just as soon as one link stops the entire chain must stop. As one link slows down, the entire chain must slow down. Yet there is absolutely no reason for such action. It is a psychological or moral condition rather than an economic condition. Business and the flow of money is like the flow of blood in ones veins. Anything which retards circulation harms everyone.

"An analysis of the balance sheets of our large industries shows that they are very largely 'made or unmade' by their 'Accounts Receivable', which is simply the accountant's name for money being owed to them. For instance, the fertilizer business, as a business, is perfectly sound. Not only are fertilizers needed but they are needed more every year. It is a fundamental industry and yet most of the fertilizer companies are having [illegible] at the present time and their securities are selling very low. The reason primarily is that farmers are buying fertilizers on credit and are not paying their bills. The chain stores on the other hand are very flourishing [illegible] The main reason for this is that these chain stores are doing a cash business. They have no 'Accounts Receiveable' and are able to discount their bills and carry large cash balances.

"In the case of almost every corporation the credit policy is an important factor and any investor buying securities today should give it careful consideration. This is especially true today when industrial stocks are so much more popular than railroads and public utility stocks. Notwithstanding their troubles the railroads and public utilities do a cash business. This applies not only to transportation companies, but also to lighting and telephone companies.

"All of this means that one of the best things we can do to bring back prosperity is to promptly pay our bills. Moreover, this applies to wage workers as well as employers, to retailers as well as to manufacturers, to people in small country towns as well as to people in the large cities. The little bills must be paid before the big ones can be paid. Before the manufacturer can pay his bills, the wholesaler, the retailer must pay the [illegible] and before the retailer can pay the [illegible], you and I must pay him. Prompt settlements will do much towards keeping the business from going lower. The Babson chart now shows it at 10 per cent below normal."

NEWCOMERSTOWN HAPPENINGS OF LIVE INTEREST

NEWCOMERS HIGH LOSES GRID GAME

Lack of experience in football cost the Newcomerstown eleven their game with the heavy and experienced Belle Valley aggregation at Warner Field, Saturday afternoon. The score was 40 to 9.

Saturday marked the first high school game in Newcomerstown in many years. The Newcomerstown lads deserve credit for playing good football from the second quarter to the end, this being their initial game.

End runs and forward passes by the Belle Valley team were accountable for all the touchdowns. The Newcomerstown line held up fairly well against the strong attacks.

The visitors worked the forward pass to advantage all thru the game. Discovering that the Newcomerstown line was putting up good resistance, the visitors made end runs to advantage.

Belle Valley had excellent team work. They thrilled the fans many times, working perfect triple passes. They mastered the ball in the first quarter, but things were better divided after the second quarter.

The out-of-town "pig-skinners" made three touchdowns in the opening quarter and blocked two goals out of three trials. Newcomerstown fans rejoiced in the first quarter when Tommy Larkin kicked a field goal for three points.

In the beginning, Newcomerstown defended the north goal, while Belle Valley took their stand at the south goal. Each team was anxious to mix it up when the whistle blew.

Newcomerstown failed many times to break up the Belle Valley "aerial barrage." The visitors made two touchdowns in the second quarter and kicked two goals. Another cheer for the home boys went to the breezes when Max Julian plowed thru the down state eleven for a touchdown. Goal was missed.

Belle Valley added another touchdown in the third quarter and went scoreless in the last period. Newcomerstown failed to score after the second episode.

The locals entered the second half with more determination to win. They displayed remarkable offensive and defensive work toward the last of the game. Inexperience in carrying out their plays handicapped the locals in the fore part of the game.

Belle Valley had splendid interference.

A small crowd of fans witnessed yesterday's game. Not as many high school students were in attendance as were expected.

Coach [illegible] expects a much bigger attendance at the next home game.

"I know it takes a little time for the fans to become interested in football. The season is just starting. Yesterday was the first game for my boys and I didn't expect them to jump in and win the first game with such good opposition as the Belle Valley eleven," was Coach Donohue's statement after yesterday's contest.

The Newcomerstown aggregation will collide with the fast Muskingum Academy at Muskingum on October 6.

Following is the Newcomerstown High line-up: Murphy, C; Meyers, R. G.; Johns, L. G.; Brown, R. T.; Mercer, L. T.; Beauregard, R. E.; Nicodemus, L. E.; Larkin, Q. B.; Adams, R. H.; Julien, F. B.; and Bartholow, L. H. Subs: Momber for Meyers and Meyers for Momberg, Steele for Johns and La Porte for Beauregard.

Timer, Heister. Referee, Donohue. Umpire, K[illegible]. Headlinesman, Reindl. Time of quarters, [illegible] minutes.

CARNIVAL APPEARS IN NEWCOMERSTOWN

A carnival bearing the name, "The Great White Way Shows," will show in Newcomerstown all this week. Fifteen cars of up-to-date carnival attractions will be shown this week, is the report.

The carnival will pitch its tents in Muskimen's Field, the usual show grounds. The performance is under the auspices of the Jr. O. U. A. M. lodge. The lodge is informed that the carnival is clean in every respect.

HAGANS' ORCHESTRA PLEASES DANCERS

The members of the Coue Dancing Club were delightfully entertained with Jim Hagans' orchestra at the club dance, Friday night at Masonic Hall, Newcomerstown.

HUGHES NOW TRIES

the people of the United States is in favor of this policy (the Open Door) not only as a national policy but as one which, were it to be adopted by every nation on earth, would be—perhaps in contrast to the search for territorial and other special privileges on foreign soils —a powerful element in the establishment of any stable peace, the foundation for great equity in the relations of nation with nation and the basis for more progressive economic development of territories.

That doctrine is the basis of the new diplomatic move by Mr Hughes. There will be other African questions to which it can be applied after Tangier is out of the way.

ONE OF EUROPE'S "SORE SPOTS."

In taking a hand in the Tangier controversy we have touched a bit roughly one of Europe's sore spots—one almost as sore as the Near East. This port, commanding the Strait of Gibraltar on the West has been the center of quarrels for more than twenty years. Britain guards it jealously because in the hands of an enemy it could be used to close the Strait and the Mediterranean. France and Spain covet it for that reason. Germany, as she built up her army, wanted to lay hands on it and the spectacular landing there of Kaiser Wilhelm in 1905 almost precipitated the European war which came nine years later.

In the last year it has been the subject of acrimonious, the almost secret, discussions among Britain, France and Spain. Its importance became suddenly enhanced when the British awoke to the realization that France had made startling progress with her submarines and airplanes and was rapidly getting into position to declare the Mediterranean no longer a "British lake." Investigation by agents of the London military chiefs showed the French, who were in control of Tangier because of their ascendancy over the Sultan of Morocco, were making "improvements" at the port which would enable them in time of war to make of it a commanding air plane and submarine base.

London demanded (and had a right to under treaties with France) that a real international regime be installed at the port—one which would see to it that no military base should be established. Spain has backed Britain. France has stood pat on control by the Sultan. marines and insisting on having a Italy has taken a hand by landing voice in any settlement.

ROOSEVELT MADE THE OPENING

It is this dispute which has given America the chance to raise the question of the "Open Door." It was the Perdicaris incident and what followed, however, which made it possible for us to intervene without danger of being told it was Europe's business and none of ours. This is how it happened.

The McKinley and Roosevelt administrations, both animated with a desire to extend American trade, set themselves against the land grabbing of the European Empires, which threatened to shut us out from most of the markets of the world. They were also moved by the desire to extend American principles to other continents than South America and did not wish to see the imperial principle triumphant.

Hay enunciated the "Open Door" policy to stop the partition of China at the conclusion of the last century. At the beginning of this century Africa had been almost gobbled up. Only Abyssinia, the Boer Republics and Morocco were free from European domination. Soon the Boer nations had been annexed. In 1904, in the process of negotiating the Entente, Britain agreed to give France a free hand in Morocco in return for a French agreement to give Britain a free hand in Egypt and the Sudan.

It was at this moment that Roosevelt seized the opportunity to show America had its rights in Morocco by making the most of the Perdicaris incident. How effective was this action was shown early in 1906 when the Kaiser's visit to Tangier resulted in a general conference over Morocco at Algeciras, Spain. America claimed the right to be represented and because of our previous activities, the right was conceded. On the insistence of our envoy the principle of the "Open Door" and equality of commercial opportunity were recognized in the treaty made there.

REVIVAL OF OUR RIGHTS

That provision had been practically lost to view in the series of tremendous events that have occupied the intervening years. We had no important trade with Morocco, we had no ships which demanded facilities. So, without protest, we permitted France and Spain to go ahead in Morocco as tho that land was theirs to do with as they pleased. Now things have changed. We must seek every possible outlet for our trade. There is a fine chance for sale of our automobiles, agricultural machinery, typewriters sewing machines and a thousand and one other things. We need port rights and traffic rights which will enable us to do our trading.

We especially need facilities at the mouth of the Mediterranean for even more important reasons. Our ships are sailing all parts of that sea. They need a port of call on the eastern shore of the Atlantic, a fueling station. We have found we are not welcome in the port of Gibraltar. We can establish what we need at Tangier if our equal rights are respected.

But there are bigger things still behind the action of Mr. Hughes. He has begun the revival of all American rights in Africa; and they are of a sweeping nature.

CANNOT MONOPOLIZE MANDATES.

The German colonies which were taken over by the Allies during the war have been incorporated into their various empires as the part of them and subject to the monopolies they exercise in the domains they acquired before the conflict. In reality they hold these conquered lands only under the mandate system adopted in the League of Nations Covenant.

The mandates provides these territories are to be administered as trusts and shall be open to all mankind under equal conditions. We did not accept the League Covenant but we have insisted nevertheless on our equal rights in all conquered lands basing our demand on the [illegible] that we were one of the victors.

Our position has been conceded elsewhere. Japan first recognized it as affecting the North Pacific island taken from Germany. Britain reluctantly conceded it as affecting Mesopotamia and Palestine and France as affecting Syria. Now that Mr. Hughes has taken the first step in Africa he is not likely to delay long in bringing the mandated lands of that continent up for consideration and there will be no way of avoiding recognition of our demands.

On the West Coast of Africa we already had an entry port at Liberia, which is under our protection. We have a voice in the conduct of Belgian Congo, for we were one of the nations which intervened when Leopold's administration of that dominion became too horrible for civilization to bear. American capital has been busy there and some of our financiers have huge concessions which can be exploited if the Government vigorously backs them.

Further in the background of this Tangier intervention is something else of vast significance. At Lausanne we enunciated this principle: "Unlimited control of the Straits and the Black Sea by any one nation is against the policy of the world." If we establish our rights in Morocco will we take the same position about the Strait of Gibraltar and the Mediterranean? If we do that sea will no longer be a "British lake."

Man 74 Years Old Is "Rejuvenated" In 3 Weeks Without Gland Operation

Kansas Contractor Tells of Wonderful Results Obtained in Test of New Scientific Discovery.

Thomas J. Glascock, 74, well-known Kansas contractor, declares he has virtually been made young again by the recently discovered korex compound, which is pronounced superior to "gland treatments" as an invigorator and revitalizer.

"I feel like I did at 35," says Mr. Glascock, "and seem to be getting stronger every day. During my three weeks' use of the new discovery, pains and weaknesses of many years' standing disappeared almost magically. Today I am as vigorous and supple as I was in the prime of life. Furthermore, when I began using the compound, my memory was virtually gone and I was almost blind. Now my mind is clear and active and I can read the finest print without difficulty."

In order to find out whether the results were lasting, Mr. Glascock waited six months before reporting on his test of the discovery. On this point he says:

"Every passing day strengthens my conviction that my restoration is not only complete but permanent. I can't express the happiness this great discovery has brought to me. It has made me 'young' again."

Similar reports are being made almost daily. For instance, D. W. Wood of New Orleans, past 60 years of age, says: "The compound has brought me back to as good, healthy physical condition as I enjoyed at 35. I am apparently as supple as at 25 and my eyesight is better than for years. I would not take $5,000 for what the discovery has done for me."

The compound is a simple home treatment in tablet form, absolutely harmless, yet rated as the quickest and most powerful invigorator known. Acting directly on lower spinal nerve centers and certain glands and blood vessels, it often brings amazing benefits in 24 to 36 hours, according to thousands who have tested it.

"It is wonderful," writes a resident of Hollister, Cal. "In less than 24 hours you can feel it does the work. It makes one feel young as a young man. I am more than happy and glad I tried it." Another Californian says: "The compound is a world's wonder. I feel like I was about 25 and here I am nearly fifty!"

The compound has been tested in all parts of the country and has won the praises of thousands who suffered from nerve weakness, lost or depleted vigor, neurasthenia, premature age, impaired glandular activity and lack of animation and vital force. Its effects seem to be virtually the same on both young and old. Physicians say the principal active ingredient of the compound gives speedy satisfaction in obstinate cases that defy all other treatments. Elderly people pronounce the discovery a real "fountain of youth."

Realizing that thousands of enfeebled, half-alive folk may consider such news "too good to be true," the American distributors have agreed to supply a double-strength treatment of the discovery on a guaranteed trial basis to everyone in need of such a preparation. If you wish to test the compound under a money-back guarantee, write in strict confidence to the Melton Laboratories, 2853 Melton Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a two-dollar treatment of korex compound, mailed in a plain, sealed wrapper. You may enclose two dollars, or simply send your name, without money, and pay two dollars and postage on delivery, as you prefer. In either case, however, if you report within ten days that you are not satisfied, the laboratories will refund the purchase price upon request. These laboratories are nationally known and thoroughly reliable, so nobody need hesitate about accepting their guaranteed offer.

Out Of The Mud, On The Map

THE statement has been made that there are counties in Ohio opposed to the good roads movement. We do not vouch for the truth of this statement as it is almost inconceivable that any responsible political division should make it. There are, of course, here and there individuals who are against the good roads movement, as there are individuals who do not believe in schools, but men of this type are happily exceptions to the general rule.

There may be counties in Ohio so isolated, so far removed from the great currents of trade that cross the country east and west and from north to south as not to feel interested enough in hard surfaced roads to pay their share of building them. But such counties must indeed be few. The general sentiment thruout the state today is for hard roads on all main thorofares with graveled roads for feeders. This sentiment is practically universal.

But if it be true that there are Ohio counties out of sympathy with this prevailing sentiment, Coshocton-co is not and should not be one of them. If there is a county in Ohio that is so located as not to benefit by inter-state and intra-state traffic, it is not Coshocton-co. If there is a taxpayer in the county who is inclined to dispute this point a glance at the map will be more convincing than hours of argument.

Railway engineers are perhaps the most reliable authorities in matters of this kind. And when the great Panhandle Division of the Pennsylvania Ry. Co. sought a direct line from its eastern terminals like New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh to Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis and other western points, they did not run their lines thru Cambridge or Zanesville to the south, nor New Philadelphia and Dover to the north, but straight thru the heart of Coshocton-co.

In like manner the Tuscarawas Valley for a century has been and for indefinite centuries to come must be the natural trail and course of north and south traffic for eastern Ohio. These things do not come by chance. They are not determined by man. Nature determines these things for us. And so our construction engineers always do the normal thing. They follow the lines of least resistance. They do nature's bidding for many sensible reasons.

It is for these reasons that we justify our claim that Coshocton-co and the city of Coshocton are at the center of the great currents of trade which cross Ohio north and south, east and west. We are literally on the "Highway of the Nations," a favored geographical spot, which, if natural advantages are employed, will make of this community a vital, pulsating industrial center.

There can be no mistaking this point. Nature has done her share. It is up to us who occupy this fine strategic position to avail ourselves of what nature has given us. There may be counties which do not possess these natural advantages and therefore feel justified in remaining recluses in the industrial world, but we are not of that number. We feel comfortably safe in saying that there is not a small city in Ohio that possesses the geographical location, nor a county with natural resources of an industrial character quite equal to ours.

This is saying a great deal and perhaps the whole truth has not been told until it is said that we, the inheritors and owners of this wonderful legacy, have not done our part in making these natural advantages instruments for our own upbuilding. Much admittedly has been done, but more remains to be done. We need more homes, we need more factories, we need many things, but we believe it is the majority judgment of the men who are building the community to say that our first need at this particular time is more improved highways.

And first of all, in order to get firstclass highways we need a well-advised, comprehensive good roads program and a strong organization to push it across. There is nothing that a community like this may want that is within reason that it cannot get if it knows first, what it wants and then goes after it intelligently and whole-heartedly. There are three or four thorofares in this county that need hard surfacing that would pay for themselves within five years after their completion, did our people but know it.

To say that it is impossible to get them is arrant nonsense. Two or three of them can be completed within three years if our people unitedly demand them and go about getting them in the right way. One of these is a straight outlet to the west without the present twenty-mile detour to the National Pike. Another is the general scheme of improvement embraced in the Pike's Peak, Ocean to Ocean Highway, which is already completed to this city and only needs to connect up with the splendid improvement recently made by our Knox-co neighbors. A third should give us access to Holmes-co, while a fourth, perhaps quite as important, would give the residents of Madison, Adams and Monroe townships in northern Muskingum-co the opportunity they desire of trading in Coshocton.

We wish to repeat that at least three of the [illegible] highway improvements can [illegible] perhaps [illegible] completed within three years, if our own people really want them. If we want these improvements and want them badly enough it is foolish to say we cannot have them for mysterious and unknown reasons [illegible]. Other counties are getting similar improvements and [illegible] reason why they are getting [illegible] Coshocton is one of the counties [illegible] share of road building.

The routes enumerated [illegible] out of the mud [illegible] stant stream of traffic [illegible] ceive until events have given [illegible] tion. The completion of [illegible] a boon to agriculture and a [illegible] roads, like all great [illegible] the benefits they confer [illegible] the measure of civilization [illegible] and what they have done [illegible] communities they will assure [illegible]

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.— Sports [illegible] and near sports of Longacre Square [illegible] are overjoyed at news that the [illegible] S. treasury is to stop issuing two dollar bills [illegible] more offering of dollar bills. The two dollar bill is by a [illegible] fills them with foreboding. For many years the two dollar bill [illegible] [illegible] ten minutes [illegible]

As he stepped from a taxi to the hotel where the game was staged [illegible] accepted a two dollar bill in change from the driver. So strong is the superstition that many all night drug stores and [illegible] in the Times Square section have signs over the cashier's cage reading:

"We do not tender two dollar bills in change."

No one seems to know where the superstition originated. But the sporting world of Broadway can point to numerous incidents where the two dollar bill has presaged tragedy.

Caesar Young, the turf bookmaker in the Nan Patterson case had a roll of two dollar bills when he was found murdered. A well known actor was dropped dead near the Claridge while trying to change a two dollar bill when the seizure claimed him.

One of two policemen who were slain by a taxi bandit recently found a two dollar bill the morning of the tragedy. Actors are equally stubborn in refusing this form of currency. It is told of one producer who wanted to rid his cast of a comedian he paid him in two spots. The comedian quit at once.

DENY DOLILNGS CO. EXCEEDED POWERS UNDER OHIO LAWS

COLUMBUS, Sept. 29— The R. L. Dollings Company of Ohio did not exceed its lawful authority under Ohio statutes in paying dividends unearned by its subsidiaries, or in maintaining control thru domination of directorates, according to claims set up by Attorneys for the defunct concern, on file in the Court of Appeals here today, answering quo warranto proceedings instituted by Attorney General Crabbe.

The answer admits that the Dollings company "advanced amounts necessary to pay dividends on preferred stock," but declared that such action was "in pursuance to powers granted in the articles of incorporation."

Attempting to justify the interlocking directorates, the answer stated that the articles of incorporation allowed the Dollings Company to have "at least one member of the board of directors" of any subsidiary concern, with no restriction as to how many more might be permitted.

The answer denied that a preferred stock guaranteed dividend fund or that stock was sold with a dividend guaranteed regardless of the company's earnings.

MUNICH IS UNDER MARTIAL LAW AND TROOPS FILL CITY

MUNICH, Sept. 29.— Reinforcements of federal troops poured into Bavaria today to suppress disorder and to maintain the authority of Federal Director Gessler. During the night the clatter of tanks could be heard in Munich as they rumbled thru the streets to guard the barracks.

Searchlights swept the sky. After daybreak airplanes began to drone over the city drifting lazily back and forth watching for concentrations of fascisti. Troops are guarding the government buildings.

SUSPECT MURDER IN CASE OF MRS. WEBB

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—Medical authorities of three counties were engaged today in an investigation to determine whether there was foul play in the death of Mrs. Charles Webb, wealthy wife of a New York stock broker and a member of one of New York's most distinguished families.

Mrs. Webb died Tuesday night at the fashionable Westchester Biltmore Country Club, under circumstances which led her physician Dr. William J. Mayer, to refuse to sign a death certificate. At his insistence coupled with that of her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hunter of Devon, Pa., medical authorities performed an autopsy removing the vital organs for examination for poison. A report from the experts is expected late today or tomorrow.

The ostensible cause of Mrs. Webb's death was pneumonia, with kidney complications. She had been ill about ten days but her illness was baffling to the physicians. Mrs. Webb was 38 years old and the daughter of S. Jennings Goman, well known in New York. She was married less than a year ago to Charles Webb. She was wealthy in her own right, her estate reputed to be worth several millions. A short time ago, it is understood, she made a new will changing the distribution of her property.

First indication of anything suspicious in Mrs. Webb's death came Tuesday night when Dr. Meyer paid a hurried midnight visit to Coroner Fitzgerald at White Plains. This occurred only a few hours after his patient's death.

The coroner was inclined to be skeptical, attributing the physician's fears to overwrought nerves. Upon calling Mr. and Mrs. Hunter by long distance, however, the coroner corroborated the physician's fears and immediately had the body removed for an autopsy.

Webb had been living at the Yale Club here since his wife's death. Upon advice of his attorney, Howard T. Kingsbury, he is refusing to discuss the case.

The Webbs had lived at the Biltmore Club only a few weeks. They previously had lived in the fashionable hotels in Westchester county and at Greenwich, Conn.

Louisville, Ky.—"I wish to thank you for what your medicine has done for me. I was in bed for eight or nine days every month and had a great deal of pain. I feel fine all the time now, also am picking up in weight. I will tell any one that your medicines are wonderful, and you may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. Ed Bohnenlein, 1180 Ash St., Louisville, Ky.

filled with entries from the Coshocton-co boys in the pig-production and pig-growing clubs.

The southwest corner of the grove was rapidly filling up with machinery Saturday afternoon. The Gray Hardware Company, The Farmers' Exchange, M. A. Van Kannel and Gay Leech each had men busy setting up all manner of implements.

Eery hall on the grounds will be overflowing into tents by Tuesday if all entries come. The Business Men's Association are well onto completion of arrangements for their monster "Made and Sold in Coshocton" exhibit in the art hall; while the educational hall will be filled with school, Farm Bureau and Boys' and Girls' club exhibits.

In "punkin hall" four granges, Oak Grove, Franklin, Plainfield and Keene Hill, will show. Edward Cooper, of Hudson, Ohio and Shennaman, Lawrence and Helbling of this county are putting up agricultural exhibits.

Hugh Hay and Clyde Bryant said Saturday, "The dog show is gonna be the dog-gonedest time ever." Every breed has many entries, with fox hounds leading and 'coon dogs a close second.

There should be amusements for everyone. Tho gambling devices are barred this year the merry-go-round will be at its old place and the Ferris-wheel, the ocean wave and the whip will run each day. The starter's gong will call out the first horses at 1 o'clock Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Secretary W. B. Miller stated that, contrary to past custom, the secretary's office will be moved to the fair grounds Monday morning.

With a rapid lowering of temperature Saturday evening and a cool wind coming from the north it is hoped that ideal weather will favor fair-goers next week.

an affiliation between the Western Tariff Association and the Southern Tariff Association. Tentative plans call for the maintenance in Washington of joint offices by the two organizations.

State executive committees for the Western Tariff Association have been organized in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming and hundreds of delegates representing the "Producing Wealth" of the vast Western country between the Mississippi and the Golden Gate are expected to attend the first convention here.

No political interests are to be represented at the congress, according to J. A. Arnold, of Washington, D. C., who has been active in the tentative arrangements for the congress programme. Only industrial, financial and civic bodies will be represented and the chief aim will be to provide for "fair and uniform" tariff laws for the West and "to show that the flexible provision in the present tariff law is a menace to a number of Western industries."

FARMERS NEED

than could the farmers themselves. America is no longer in the position of dictating to foreign countries what the price of wheat shall be as other parts of the world have come into production. The U. S. is at the mercy of a world wide situation. Canada for instance with a crop of 350,000,000 bushels of wheat to export is compelled to take the same price for her product as America with her approximate surplus of 75,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels.

Officials point out that the price of wheat today is higher than it was a year ago today and that prices are bound to rise still further.

Europe is buying from hand to mouth and currencies abroad are fluctuating due to unstable political and economic conditions. The settlement of the war in the Ruhr is confidently counted on here to improve the situation through the natural benefit that will accrue to the purchasing power of all Europe unless of course revolution develops in Germany and destroys the value of the German surrender to France.

No special session of congress is in the offing because the administration hasn't yet anything to propose that can be cured by legislation. Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture, Secretary Hoover, Eugene Meyer of the war finance corporation and all the men in the government who know anything about the farm situation are straining hard to find some solution that will help the farmer. The political power of the farm bloc is appreciated. The administration wants to appear as sympathetic and helpful as possible. If the farmers want to return wheat to the American market they must get rid of the [illegible] or else get a pro[illegible] price. There is little doubt that western senators and members of the house will come back here with proposals to have the government finance the wheat crop but on the face of things today the proposal will not get administration backing. The hope here is that conditions will have shown material improvement when congress reconvenes and that the natural laws of economics will cure the difficulty.

CALORIC PIPELESS FURNACE

The CaloriC gives you two big advantages — more comfort—at lower cost.

More comfort because it heats by circulation—and circulation takes the cool air out of the building—thus allowing the war mair to flow freely to every part of every room without resistance.

CaloriC circulating heat means uniform heat—as much warmth at windows of far off rooms as near the register, as the thermometer will show.

Lower cost because scientific pipeless construction and patented triple-casing insulation deliver practically all the heat from the fuel directly into the rooms through the one register.

The experience of the CaloriC user, who heated 8 rooms with 1-3 less fuel than he formerly used to heat only 3 rooms, is the common experience of more than 150,000 users.

EXTRA POWER Where Power Counts!

Why the $1045 Cleveland can outperform bigger and costlier sixes

THE 1924 Cleveland is now known as the finest performer of its class. This is why:

The new Cleveland motor with its modern-to-the-minute design, develops on actual test more horsepower in the driving range than the bulky and less efficient power plant of the average light six.

That extra power is responsible for the thrilling way the 1924 Cleveland rushes past bigger and costlier sixes on hills. It's the same extra power which sends the Cleveland spurting swiftly ahead when you give her the gas in traffic.

Do you know the effect of that extra horsepower when taking a hill in a car of the Cleveland's size and weight? Do you know what an amazing difference it makes when driving in crowded streets?

Why not come in and make your own tests? Unless you actually drive the 1924 Cleveland Six, you can not appreciate what extraordinary performance can now be obtained in a six so sturdy, so handsome, so comfortable, and yet so moderately priced.

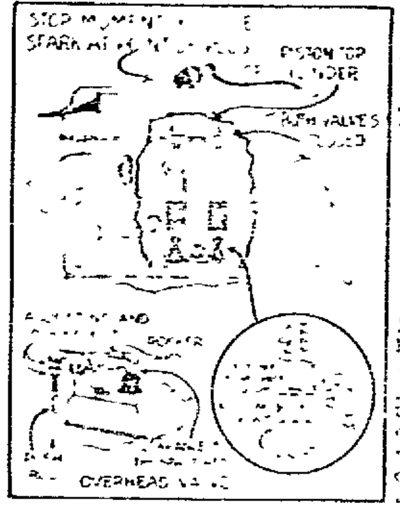
How to Tune Up the Engine for Power and Economy

Most automobile [illegible] to have the engine adjusted so that when [illegible] can be heard from it. Sometimes, however, [illegible] at the sacrifice of economy, and power, and [illegible] overhauling and repair bills. [illegible] the valves.

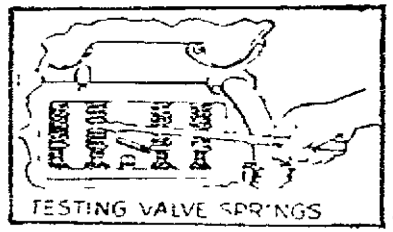
If the clearance [illegible] adjusted TOO CLOSELY, the valves [illegible] the engine will not have the power and pep [illegible] and the valves will require frequent grinding. [illegible] adjusted correctly, the valves should not require [illegible] than about once in every 5,000 miles.

Here is the reason [illegible] clearance must be left between the valves and the tappets. [illegible] expand when heated, some more than other. When the [illegible] strikes the heads of the valves, it heats [illegible] the whole valve expands slightly. To take care of this expansion, a slight space must be left between the [illegible] and the top of the valve tappet or rocker [illegible] as soon as the valve gets hot [illegible] then leaks. This results in [illegible] loss of compression. The [illegible] of clearance allowed varies on different engines. On a Packard, for instance, the clearance is .002 inch, or about the thickness of a sheet of newspaper, while on a Ford the clearance is .0[illegible] inch, or about the thickness of two government post cards. The average clearance allowed is .004 inch for Intake Valves, and .006 inch for Exhaust Valves. After grinding in the valves, the clearance must be left slightly MORE than this until the engine has run about 500 miles, so as to give the valves time to bed down, [illegible] then they can be adjusted to the EXACT clearance. Find out from the instruction book you received with your car what the correct clearance is for your engine. If you have lost your book, write the maker [illegible] another copy. He will be pleased to supply [illegible] the year and model of your car. [illegible] are arranged at the side [illegible] between the bottom of the valve stem [illegible] In an overhead valve engine, [illegible] top of the valve stem and the [illegible] shows clearly the point [illegible]



[illegible] in the cylinder must be [illegible] on top of the cylinder [illegible] closely with the hand [illegible] points of the plug stop [illegible] to check the clearance [illegible]. You can buy one very cheaply [illegible] the following will serve as a guide [illegible] inch thick, a Gillette razor blade is [illegible] a government post card is just about .010 inch thick [illegible] exercised in setting the valve clearance to the exact [illegible] recommended by the instruction book or [illegible] feel absolutely confident you can make this adjustment properly do not attempt it, but have it done by a competent [illegible] set TOO CLOSE, when the valve heats up [illegible] close tightly on its seat and leaks badly. This is also the reason why some engines are hard to start [illegible] very frequently. If the adjustment is [illegible] set up a noisy clicking, but it is better to have [illegible] more clearance than not enough. If the valves are correctly adjusted, there may be a slight clicking sound when the engine is cold, but it will disappear when the engine is warmed up.

The clearance [illegible] when the valves are at the sides of the cylinders by loosening the lock nut on the tappet adjusting screw or in an overhead valve engine loosening the lock nut on the push rod. Turn the screw or rod up or down until the clearance is correct. When you have [illegible] hold the adjusting screw or rod perfectly stationary with one wrench while you tighten the locking nut with the other. After you complete the adjustment, carefully check the clearance to make sure that the adjusting screw did not move while you were tightening the lock nut.



TESTING VALVE SPRINGS

After the valves have been ground in and the clearance adjusted, it's a good idea to test the valve springs, especially if the engine has run over 20,000 miles. After this period the springs sometimes become weak causing the engine to run unevenly when idling and will also cause misfiring at [illegible] speeds sometimes. To test the condition of the springs, start the engine, then insert the blade of a screw driver between the coils of the spring and give the handle a twist. If the springs are too weak the increased tension will cause the engine to run a little smoother and faster. The remedy is of course to fit a new valve spring.

PERCENTAGE OF BUICKS IS HIGH

Statistics Show Sales Follow Population in Every Part of Country

A definite percentage of Buick's yearly output goes into each community, according to the percentage of total population living there, and with this percentage goes the proper ratio of service facilities. This means that the man living on the farm or in the small village can buy a Buick and know that he will be served after he purchases it.

It is interesting to note the percentage of total United States population in various sized cities as well as the percentage of Buick owners in the same cities.

[illegible]

The table shows that every community has its fair share of Buicks and wherever Buick owners are there you will find the sign "Buick Authorized Service"—the sign that [illegible] Buick owners are not forgotten. A Detroit Buick owner, for instance, knows that whether he tours to Maine, Minnesota, Arizona or Tennessee, there he will find Buick dealers, Buick service stations and Buick owners. Last Longer-Less Adjustment

Buick Four-Wheel Brakes

Buick four-wheel brakes not only double the braking efficiency of the new 1924 Buicks by doubling the braking surface, but for the same reason lessen the wear on each brake mechanism in proportion. Buick four wheel brakes last longer. They require less adjustment and the linings do not wear down as quickly.

Simple in construction and positive in action, Buick four-wheel brakes give added safety under all circumstances. They are of the Buick external contracting type and each brake has a three-quarter wrap or grip instead of the usual half-way grip.

Buick four-wheel brakes are operated with a slight pressure on the service brake pedal. They act quickly, smoothly and easily.

All 1924 Buicks (both fours and sixes) have these new four-wheel brakes. In addition, the 1924 Buicks embody further advancements in power, in construction and in beauty that make Buick more than ever "the Standard of Comparison".

MOTOR TRANSPORT CONGRESS TO SOLVE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS

"How fitting it is that the greatest of all gatherings of automobile men is to be held in the state of Michigan, where was written the history of the motor car's greatest development," says S. J. Karshner & Son, local dealers in Durant and Star Cars.

"Delegates from 114 countries are to confer at Detroit, May 1924, for the purpose of a better understanding of the economic problems underlying motor transportation in every part of the world.

"The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce of the United States is sponsoring the congress, and has extended invitations to foreign government officials, automotive associations, dealers representing automotive manufacturers abroad, and editors of trade papers.

"The Automobile Chamber of Commerce numbers among its active members many of the world's most prominent automotive experts and executives, who are making a careful study of problems pertaining to taxation, highway, insurance, distribution, servicing, operation and financing of automobiles.

"At the Congress they will apply their findings to specific conditions in the various countries. Foreign delegates will review the situation in their countries and state the problems that confront them.

"Urgent transportation problems are pressing in many countries and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce states its belief that this practical exchange of ideas and experience will create a better understanding of the part contributed by the motor vehicle to the economic development of the countries in which its use has become general.

"The importance of the Congress to the average driver is great. Manufacturers now realize that their attitude will influence the public demand for cars. If they aid in solving road problems, help the owner finance his car, service it properly and above all sell a product that is exactly as represented and satisfactory for an extended period of time, the public will respect the manufacturer, aid his success and purchase more cars.

"There have been peace conferences, disarmament meetings, international labor gatherings, Olympic athletic meets, and now comes the international meeting of those who sway the world's automotive destinies.

"Everywhere the reports of this congress will be read with interest. It will not be surprising if such conferences are frequently held, to see as their result the doubling of the uses for the motor vehicle. Enlightened co-operation accomplishes many things. With it the expansion of this industry has been almost phenomenal."

MAXWELL-CHALMERS CUTS ARE CREDITED TO W. P. CHRYSLER

The manufacturing and sales ingenuity of Walter P. Crysler, chairman of the board of directors of the Maxwell Motor Corporation, is credited by officials of the corporation for making possible the material reductions in the prices of all models of Maxwell and Chalmers cars, recently announced.

Reductions on the Maxwell range up to $50 on the touring and roadster and on the Chalmers to $100 on the seven passenger custom type sedan. The average reduction on Maxwell cars were $61 on each of the nine models and $60 on the five Chalmers cars. The smallest Maxwell reduction was $10 and $50 was the lowest reduction on a Chalmers model.

The new prices make both the good Maxwell and improved Chalmers cars the lowest at which they have ever sold.

"Mr. Chrysler, thru his own ability in manufacturing, and that of his organization in merchandising and selling, has succeeded in recent months in effecting economies both in the manufacture and distribution of Maxwell and Chalmers, and at the same time adding numerous improvements in the cars," said Arthur E. Barker, vice president of the corporation, in commenting on the reductions. This Maxwell-Chalmers action has been the subject of considerable discussion among motor car dealers and by the general public.

The reductions, Mr. Barker pointed out, were made at a time when increases in automobile prices were forecast by many observers. For that reason especially, they stand out as a remarkable tribute to the ability of Mr. Chrysler, his engineers and the Maxwell-Chalmers sales organization," he added.

"That the public was quick to appreciate the greater value now offered by both Maxwell and Chalmers is conveniently shown in factory sales and shipping records since the announcement. Hundreds of dealers are reporting unprecedented September business."

DOUBLE LOCK FOR DODGE BROS. CAR

It is expected that thefts of Dodge Brothers motor cars will be greatly reduced by one of the improvements which Dodge Brothers have incorporated in their newly designed cars. It is a Yale lock, built into the transmission, making it possible to double lock the car when idle. The lock is fixed in the floor, within easy reach of the driver.

Dogs Are Killed Off as Carriers of Fleas

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Sept. 29.—Fleas the very same kind of jumpers that make Rover sit on his left rib and scratch his right ear with the farthest away paw have invaded Logansport homes in such numbers that the Board of Health took cognizance of the epidemic.

Instead of killing the fleas Logansport is killing dogs. All stray animals are being rounded up and disposed of.

Eighty homes have reported the annoyance to the city authorities.

DODGE BROTHERS
TOURING CAR

In city traffic or on the open road, this new touring car impresses you instantly with its exceptional riding comfort.

The seats are deeper and lower. The body has been lengthened to afford more leg-room. Its low-swung design reduces side sway and increases the car's stability at all speeds.

The front springs are wider, and built of more, and thinner leaves; the rear springs—now underslung—have been materially increased in length.

In fact, the comfort of the car is comparable in every way with its good looks and the well known character of its performance.

WHY WOODY WOODPECKER NEVER TIRES

"WELL, of all things!" exclaimed Mrs. Robin as she poked her head over the side of her nest and looked over at Woody Woodpecker, who was pounding the trunk of the old maple tree next to her. "What in the name of goodness are you doing, anyway?"

"I'm sorry if I disturbed you, Mrs. Robin," chirped Woody Woodpecker. "But since my wife is good enough to sit on her nest to raise a family for me, I must find her plenty of food."

"But gracious!" laughed Mrs. Robin, "you've been hammering that tree for ever so long. I should think by now, you'd be tired. Your tapping was the thing that awakened me this morning and here it is almost evening. You've been at it the greater part of the day, it seems to me."

"It takes a lot to feed a hungry wife, you know!" laughed Woody Woodpecker, good-naturedly. "I'm kept busy day and night. When the little ones come, I will have my hands full, I can tell you."

"My, I don't see how you can keep it up—hammer, hammer, hammer from morning until night. I should think your legs would grow weary, holding up your body."

"Not my legs," laughed Woody Woodpecker. "That's one part of me that never tires. Haven't you ever watched me gathering food?"

"I can't say that I have," replied Mrs. Robin. "But I can say this—you can keep it up longer than any other bird in the meadow."

"Because I have it down to a science," laughed Woody Woodpecker. "I use my tail as a stool you might say—just like this." And Woody Woodpecker braced his tail behind him on the tree and gave a hearty peck on the trunk.

"Well, of all things!" laughed Mrs. Robin when Woody Woodpecker pulled out a nice juicy worm and brought it over to her. "How in the world did you ever get that fellow out of so small a hole? I always thought you'd have to tear all the bark away before you could get him."

"Look at My Tongue."

"Goodness no!" replied Mr. Woody Woodpecker. "Not with a tongue like mine. Look at my tongue." And he stuck his tongue out so that Mrs. Robin could get a good look at it.

His tongue was very long and slender, and on the very tip end were a number of small, barbed points.

"Nothing that I once hook these points into ever gets away from me," Woody Woodpecker added. "Then, too, we woodpeckers have a sticky fluid which helps us a great deal. When my tongue goes out, it's covered at the same time with this sticky fluid. The second I touch my victim, it is captured. But if I don't hurry home, my wife will miss me." And with a merry chirp, Woody Woodpecker sailed away.

"All I can say," said Mrs. Robin to herself with a laugh, after Woody Woodpecker had disappeared—"All I can say is, I'm glad Daddy Robin and I prefer worms that live in the ground. I'd rather be a robin than a woodpecker."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

The Decision Madge Felt Forced to Make.

MECHANICALLY I took up the letters and post-card which Dicky had thrown into my lap with so sudden a display of temper. I knew without looking at the card what had aroused his anger. The contemptuous appellation, "Faithful Fido!" which he had just uttered, told me that the post-card was from Hugh Grantland. I was hotly angry at the sneer, but I was determined to let no hint of my wrath appear, and I was therefore doubly glad when the taxi horn sounded imperatively in the street below.

"There's your taxi." The perfunctory words came from my lips [illegible].

Dicky scowled blackly at me as he flung himself toward the door.

"I'm still capable of hearing a taxi-horn," he snapped as he swung open the door.

The next instant he had closed it with a bang which I knew must have resounded through the whole building, and the sound of his feet rapidly descending the stairs registered continued wrath.

It was not until the sound of the closing street door reverberated through the house, that I brought my mind back to the letters I held. With the curious instinct which makes one save the most important things until the last, I opened the envelope which Dicky had designated as some "club thing," and found the announcement of a lecture for which I cared nothing.

I crumpled the thing and threw it into the wastebasket with an irritation out of all proportion to my annoyance.

"Here for Two Weeks."

A look at the remaining letter verified Dicky's comment that it had come from Lillian, and I laid it to one side for the careful reading which I always give the letters of the woman who holds the highest place in my friendship and devotion. Then I took up the postcard with a nervousness which I explained to myself as the result of Dicky's rude comment.

It was dated five days before, but I could not decipher the name of the place from which it had been sent. However, it was legibly written on the card, with the words, "Here for two weeks." Then came the initials I remembered so well, "H. G.," and that was all.

Little enough, it would seem, to arouse such anger in Dicky. But I knew that it was not this particular post-card which had aroused his wrath, but the fact that for years Hugh Grantland had kept me informed of his whereabouts, so that I could [illegible] him if at any time I needed him.

Madge Analyzes Her Problem.

That Dicky would make no further comment on the post-card I knew. The remembrance of Hugh Grantland's dramatic restoration of [illegible] after his kidnapping by [illegible] was too fresh in his memory and gratitude. But the [illegible] little [illegible] which he had once produced never again to [illegible] to Hugh Grantland, showed me that his jealous anger against the erstwhile army officer had never died, but was smouldering close beneath the surface of his emotions, ready at any instant to break into flames.

I held the post-card closer to my eyes and scrutinized it thoughtfully. Ought I not to write to Hugh Grantland and ask him to discontinue the cards which for years he had sent whenever he changed his address, so that I should always know where he could be reached in case of need?

It would mean hurting him undeservedly I knew. I could not help knowing that he cared for me with an affection as deep as it was hopeless, but I also knew that never by word or deed would he even attempt to lessen my love for my husband.

Did I owe such a sacrifice to Dicky? I was honest enough to own to myself that it would be fair for me to sever altogether the ties of friendship between myself and Major Grantland. I tried to look at the matter without sentiment, making my standpoint one of simple justice to everybody concerned.

When I had gone over my life with my husband, trying to view it as if it were not my own but that of some other woman, I came to the decision that Dicky had no right to ask me to relinquish any friendship I might choose to make.

That my decision was strengthened by the events of the preceding night I knew, even though I had not yet received positive proof that Dicky was to blame for the accident, or the disturbing inscription on the flyleaf of the book. But I put the post-card away in my desk with the resolve that it would take more than one explosion of my husband's temper to make me deprive myself of Major Grantland's friendship.

Then, with pleasurable anticipation, I opened Lillian's letter.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

How Some Families Solve Problems of Over-Night Guests

By WANDA BARTON

IN the restricted paths of modern housekeeping, the extra guest has become almost an unsolvable problem instead of the old-time joy, and it takes quite a lot of thought and good management to put a guest up in comfort.

It is bedding them that causes the most difficulty, for single beds are the rule rather than exception in most homes, so there is no chance for a bedfellow. Many a couch or day-bed becomes a real bed at night when the dress cushions are removed and a box underneath gives up the needed quota of bedding.

A leather couch or one of willow for that matter is difficult to make as the bedding slips off in all directions. But there is a way to retain the bed-clothes if the housewife has learned the secret of the cotton flannel or blanket slipcover. This cover is made to fit the couch. It is buckled in place at the four corners and under the middle with tight webbing and buckles and when in place makes a sort of base to which the bedding clings. There is a tie tape that catches the under blanket at the four corners, which clinches the entire bed-clothing scheme and makes it stay where it is put.

The folding army cot is not as comfortable as it might be for one accustomed to a hair mattress and good springs, [illegible]

WHEN one knows how lovely she looks, she is likely to read in every pair of eyes that gaze upon her a tribute to her beauty. But it may happen that those eyes are looking for a tribute, not paying one.

Why, even a cat—a lovely, long-haired furry creature with sparkling eyes—may know that she, herself, is beautiful and demand admiration as her due. There are moments when it's a puzzling thing, this matter of admiration!

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Riches and Their Worth

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

HE died in Texas the other day, the man who was always telling such wonderful stories about Alaska and how he used to drive his team of dogs over the snow and hear the Northern Lights crackling like a whole barrelful of fire crackers, and watch the moon hanging there in the sky like a great silver lantern illuminating a world of white spaces and glittering fields.

He loved the talk about the long Arctic nights and the Indians, and the polar bears and baby seals and the penguins he had seen.

Gold strikes, too—these he told of—and all the young men in the little town where he lived listened to him with a catch in their breath and thought how lucky he was to have seen the world and the wonders of it while they stayed at home down in Texas and rode the range and herded cattle or sold so many yards of so much material from behind little counters in little shops or added up columns of figures in some of the little banks.

"There's nothing like the North!" he used to say—the man who had been to Alaska and the Antarctic. "There's a spell about it that holds you till you die." And it must be true what he said, for to the very day of his death he talked about the Frozen North and said he wanted to go back there and he asked almost with his last breath that he be buried in the fur robes he wore in the North.

And what he asked was granted to him. They wrapped his body in a great coat of Russian sable and on his quiet feet they put his great fur-lined boots and around him over the coat and over the boots they wrapped an enormous fur cape of sable—and then they buried him and there he lies or what is left of him, wrapped in furs that could be sold for something like $40,000, and nobody is the better for them—not one whit.

The Joys He Missed!

Poor fellow! How feeble was his imagination—how dull was his idea of pleasure! What a lot of fun he missed—he and his fur boots and his cape and coat of sable. Just think of the good time he could have had planning what to do with the money that could have come from the sale of those furs.

Was there no old friend who has seen better days that he would have liked to remember?

Where is the crony who sped across the snow with him behind the leaping dogs—there in the low sleigh heaped with furs under the cold moon in the sparkling sky? Old and poor and lonely perhaps, eking his life out in some public institution maybe or living upon cold charity of distant relatives who wish he had stayed in Alaska and died there.

What joy it would have been to have these furs sold and the money sent to such an old friend as that! How it would have warmed the chilling heart even of a dying man to think of such a thing.

Was there no old sweetheart somewhere—now no longer young? Few men live and die without the image of some boyhood darling in their hearts.

Married perhaps and middle-aged and tired and a little disillusioned—think of what that $40,000 might have meant to her!

And once perhaps this man who was wrapped so close in his rich furs thought that he would suffer any pain to give that sweetheart one hour of joyous happiness.

He Didn't Know

And the children that money would have saved from slow starvation!

The babies that could have been fed and nourished with that $40,000!

Poor man! He didn't quite know how to live—or how to die, did he?

Money and furs, and diamonds and pearls—what glorious things they are when you know what to do with them!

Dr. Lang also says the white rhinoceros is a sociable and inoffensive beast. It never attacks men and never quarrels with its own kind. It has the habit of taking a daily mud bath. There are only about [illegible] of them left, the others having been slaughtered as were the American buffaloes.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Very Unusual Dinner Dress.

TO-NIGHT, I dined at a very smart restaurant. It's great fun, I think, to have a leisurely, late dinner and to chat and look about at all the other diners.

Bob, an old friend, asked me to go out with him and it just fitted in with my plans. I was to be all alone and would probably have done some sewing. It's always pleasanter, I think, to do something unexpected and let work wait.

"Don't come very early," I instructed him.

I knew Madame was having a busy day and that I'd probably have to stay late to see that all the clients were cared for.

Almost up until six they were [illegible], and I climbed out of one frock and into another until I was weary.

"Too bad you can't just keep that little dinner gown on, and go from here," Bob suggested when I was [illegible].

"Instead of going home and dressing my own little dinner gown with the [illegible]," I added.

However, I lived through the preliminaries, and seven-thirty found me all ready, gowned in my simple black crepe.

Bob arrived, and before long we were seated at a cosy table in a [illegible] lighted dining room.

"Interesting wall paintings," Bob commented.

On a background of cream, there were painted tiny little [illegible] perched about on the branches of [illegible] trees that looked more like [illegible] than real trees.

"Unique, to say the least," I replied.

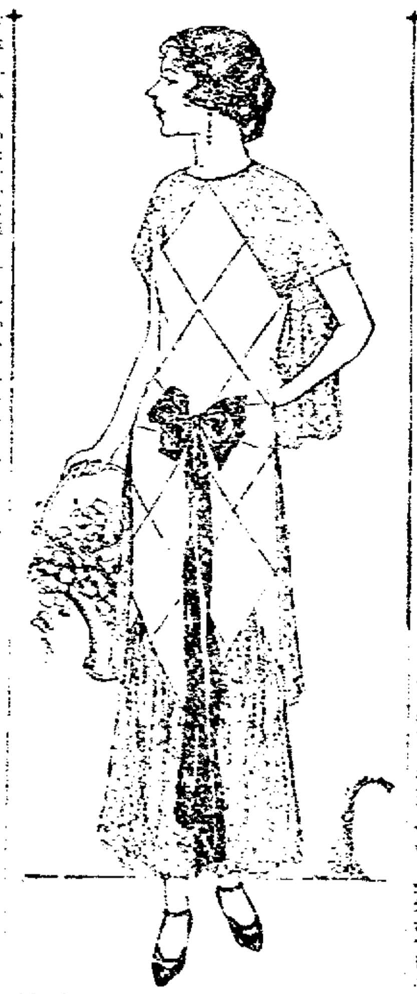
"But I'm much more interested in the clothes," I added.

Bob smiled good-naturedly as I turned my head about the corner to see a stunning black gown that was going by.

"Now how would you describe [illegible]?" he asked.

"Black chiffon and lace," I answered. "But to tell the truth it would be difficult to tell anyone else just how it's made."

"It would be very difficult for me," he agreed. "But I'm sure you could."



Black Chiffon Combines with Lace to Make This Dinner Dress.

"The body of the frock is chiffon, with [illegible] making a [illegible]," I said.

"And there's a [illegible] and lace sleeves," he added.

"Very good!" I encouraged him.

"The cape hangs to the waist and there's another tier of lace at the back that hangs from the waist to about the knees," I added.

I could see that the chiffon ended in points, and from below them a deep tier of gathered lace dropped to the ankles.

"What color is the sash?" Bob asked.

"Old blue," I answered.

"When I was a little boy and used to go to little girls' parties, they always tied their sashes at the back," he said.

"Times have changed," I answered. "Now sashes tie anywhere, from the back to the front, and sometimes there's a bow at each side."

Then the music started and we danced.

HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 1.

Sunday's horoscope is favorable for those in the employment of others and for those in places of authority. For them money and business, honors and preferment should be forthcoming, provided they are qualified and deserving.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a fortunate year with increase of money, business and honors. A child born on this day will be clever and successful and will rise in life to good position.

Monday's astrological ruling makes for conflicting conditions and fluctuating fortunes. There may be unsettled affairs with the tendency to change, which may be ill-advised. Be careful in travel and avoid law and quarrels.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of checkered fortunes, in which the tendency to unnecessary travel and change should be suppressed. They should shun litigation and refrain from quarrels. A child born on this day may have a restless nature unless it is carefully trained.

YOUR HEALTH

Here's a Daily Routine for Long and Happy Life

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

IT is too bad that sickness cannot be reserved for the lazy and useless members of society, persons who like to loaf around and do nothing worth while.

But nature has a way of getting so much rest for everybody. If you work too hard and rob yourself of rest and sleep, you may count on one certain thing—you will pay for this neglect and over-exertion in one of two ways: You will have a severe illness, or else you will die before your time.

Nature demands certain things and if you do not govern yourself accordingly, you will have an enforced vacation.

Perfect living consists in eating the right quantities of proper foods, drinking plenty of pure water, keeping clean, working every day at some worth-while job, getting into sunshine and open air each day, having a reasonable amount of agreeable recreation, sleeping soundly every night in a well-ventilated bedroom, and thinking good thoughts all the time.

Active hatred will shorten life. It wears out the heart, impairs digestion and floods the body with angry toxins.

You must be happy to live long. You cannot be happy unless you are worthily occupied. You are not so occupied unless you are doing something to make the world better.

Cleanliness is next to godliness, we are taught. Lots of water, inside and out, and soap used for external cleansing, are essential to your health and long life.

The simpler your life the better. Simple food in moderation and deliberate eating will promote digestion. Early to bed and early to rise is a rule as good now as when it was first promulgated.

Stretching your muscles in the sunshine and filling your lungs to the very bottom with pure air will add warmth and color to your blood.

Complete your day by doing some deed of kindness or mercy. You will benefit more than the recipient of your thoughtful act.

These are the ingredients of a prescription which will add happy years to your life of usefulness.

Answers to Health Questions.

M. S. Q.—Will you please tell me why it is that every time I eat chopped meat it gives me indigestion?

2.—Whenever I walk any distance I get a severe pain in my left side. Will you please tell me what to do for this?

A.—Apparently this form of food does not agree with you and you should eliminate it from your diet. It is very indigestible.

2.—You should have a thorough physical examination to find the cause and then proper treatment can be outlined. Do not neglect this condition.

K. L. Q.—I am a boy seventeen years old, and am five feet seven inches tall. Will you please tell me what my correct weight should be, and do you think I will grow any more?

A.—For your age and height you should weigh about [illegible] pounds. Undoubtedly, you will grow for several years yet. Stretching exercises, such as touching the floor with the fingers without flexing the knees, may help to increase your growth.

C. B. Q.—Will you please tell me what will make the eyelashes grow?

A.—Apply yellow oxide of mercury ointment, 1 per cent, to the eyelashes at night before retiring. This will help to improve their growth.

C. J. M. Q.—Will you please tell me what the first symptoms of appendicitis are and whether this condition can be cured without an operation?

A.—The first symptoms of appendicitis are pain in the side, constipation, and vomiting. Surgical treatment is the only cure for this condition. If you have this trouble you should be under the care of a physician.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of nineteen. For the past five months I have been going with a young man of twenty-two and am now engaged to him. My parents approve of him in every way.

Several nights ago he asked my permission to take another girl to a party. He said it was not the sort of a party he liked to take his promised wife to, and he would like to have a little freedom before settling down. As I am not of a jealous nature, I gave my consent. At this party he got in some trouble over the girl, and now people are running down my reputation for continuing my engagement. He is very repentant over his actions of that evening and begs me to forgive him. He promises he will not go out again and I believe him and am willing to forgive him, but other people say I am foolish if I do. Do you think I am in danger of ruining my reputation if I continue our former acquaintance?

AN OLD-FASHIONED GIRL.

AN OLD-FASHIONED GIRL: Your fiance did not deceive you, my dear, so, if you really love him, try to help him in this unfortunate situation. He probably needs you more than ever now. Forgive him. If, however, he is guilty of such a misdeed again, then it will be wise for you to break your engagement.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a wife of two years. Since the birth of our little son, three months ago, my husband has forgotten home, wife and child.

He is out until midnight every night, but does not work.

He makes lots of money, but does not want to spend any on baby and myself. He never tells me the truth about anything.

I always try to be kind to him and please him in every way, for I love him most dearly.

Please give me your advice as to how to bring him back to home and child and make him love us once more.

BROKEN-HEARTED WIFE.

BROKEN-HEARTED WIFE: All that you can do, my dear, is to make yourself and your home so cheerful and attractive that your husband will prefer staying home with you to going out.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls who are both in love with the same young man.

We are very fond of each other and see no reason why this should come between us.

We would like to know how we can tell which he likes better as he shows no preference.

E. J.

E. J.: The young man probably considers you both his friends. Do not give him too much thought, but instead enjoy the companionship of other young men.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

EAGUERS WANT SERIES WITH THE COSHOCTON TEAM

Realizing that the Coshocton Regulars are in first place in the Eastern Ohio League and that Coshocton has the fastest team in that league, an aggregation composed of "just back from the leagues" and now located in Millersburg, has chalenged Manager B.E. Robertson's club for a game or a series of games. The Millersburg team wants to play the game or games at Lake Park.

Manager Robertson and his backers have not yet decided whether they will accept the challenge. The "leaguers" are composed of some of the fastest minor league players in the country.

Following is a list of the players and their playing reputations during past seasons. Cooper, 1b, of Cedar Rapids, has played in eighty games with a fielding average of .959 and a batting average of .293 and was sold to Columbus this fall.

Bech, a semipro from Gambier has signed a contract to play with Cedar Rapids in 1924.

Michaels shortstop, played in 129 games and finished the 1922 season with a fielding average of 929 and hitting a stride of .300. He was purchased by Pittsburgh and farmed out to the Nashville club, Southern League.

Jordon, third base, semi-professional player of Millersburg, signed by the Waterloo club, Eastern League.

Rye, utility infielder, played 89 games with Cedar Rapids and finished the season with a fielding average of .917 and a batting average of .244.

Hickler, left field, played 25 games and finished the 1922 season with a fielding average of 1,000 and a batting average of .279.

Spear, who started his career at Mansfield in the O. and P. League and formerly with Cleveland and Toledo Mud Hens and late of the P. C. League and now manager of the Cedar Rapids clubs, finished the season with a fielding average of .987 at first base and hitting .380.

Elliott, well known player here, Millersburg catcher, formerly with Cedar Rapids in 1922 and finished the season with an average of .966 while catching and an average of .293 in batting.

Valentine, pitcher and formerly of Cedar Rapids in 1922, won 21 games and lost 8, an average of .724. He played 46 games in the outfield, having an average of .984 and batting .300. He was formerly with Rochester, International League.

Troutman, right fielder, was formerly with Portsmouth, Ohio State League and in the Southern League. He was also an assistant coach in the Ohio State University at one time.

The Millersburg manager claims that a team of this calibre should be given a chance at the fastest team in the Eastern Ohio League to test their strength.

Coshocton fans will no doubt be interested in a match of these two fast clubs.

PAPYRUS EXPECTED TO PERFORM WELL IN STRANGE LAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — Declaring that a good horse will run well any place, any time," Basil Jarvis, trainer of Papyrus, prepared to move the colt today from the Aquitania to his quarters at Belmont Park, where he will race America's leading 3-year-old on Oct. 20. The English trainer added that he was satisfied the winner of the Derby at Epsom Downs would be able to run his true race in the big event.

"Papyrus is a good horse," he said. "He isn't an Ormonde or a St. Simon, but he's a good horse. He has shipped well and I expect him to run to the top of his form against your American horse."

The colt, he conceded, had never run on a sand track but he expressed confidence in the English champion's ability to adapt his racing to all conditions here. "All of his races have been on the turf," Jarvis declared, "but we have a tanbark track at home and he gallops over it in a way that leads me to believe he likes it and for that reason I think he will run well on your sand track. It is warmer here than in England, but I don't think the change in climate will hurt him."

Papyrus is said by keen observers to be a splendid looking colt. He stands 15.3 and weighs between 1,000 and 1,100 pounds and bears a striking resemblance to Zev, who, it is generally understood will be selected as the American entry for the race.

The English trainer, like all horsemen, had no definite idea of how fast the colt can run. He never carries a stop watch, he said.

The horse will be walked and trotted for a week or more and then given a fast trial, he added.

SUNDAY'S GAMES TO DECIDE FLAG RACE IN SCOTT'S LEAGUE

Sunday's feud at Mansfield will decide the Eastern Ohio League bunting, according to the backers of the Coshocton Regulars.

Zanesville enters the field first with Mansfield and then comes the league leaders, the Coshocton Regulars, who will battle the Great Americans.

If Mansfield wins both games, she will displace Zanesville in second position. Sunday will be the Regulars' last game of the season in the Eastern Ohio League. After next Sunday, the Coshocton Regulars, which will no doubt be the Eastern Ohio League champs, will play independent baseball until cold weather sets in.

A special train will leave the local Pennsy depot Sunday morning at 9 o'clock for Mansfield. From all reports the fans will make the trip with the team, as it is their last out-of-town game this season. The special will be made up of ten coaches.

The baseball fans in this city have supported the local club wonderfully this season. The local baseball management has returned the favor by giving the fans good, clean, and fast baseball this season.

The fans are anxious to see Coshocton win the last league game of the season from Mansfield. Mansfield has a good team and has shown up well against Coshocton both at home and away from home. Some of Mansfield's ex-players will be in the lineup Sunday against Zanesville and Coshocton, is the report.

The three teams are attempting to make Sunday one big gala day in the Richland-co metropolis. Mansfield is especially preparing for a big turnout of fans on this day. Both games will be played for a small admission price.

The batteries for the Zanesville-Mansfield game will likely be: Greys—Dowell, Carmichael and Reilly; Mansfield—Van Horn and Woerth. The batteries for the second contest will probably be Regulars—Rasnick and King; Mansfield—Noel, Maul and Woerth.

COSHOCTON TEAM DEFINITELY ANNOUNCES PROTESTED GAME WILL NOT BE PLAYED OVER

While it has been the policy of the Coshocton baseball club of the Eastern Ohio League, including the management, to confine its efforts to winning games on the diamond thruout the present season, with the pennant as its only goal, an article appearing in Friday's Zanesville Times-Recorder anent the protested game of September 23 stirred up a hornet's nest among Coshocton followers of the game. The article is so manifestly unfair that its array of misstatements has compelled the local management to defend itself before the fans of the Eastern Ohio League in general and the Coshocton fans in particular.

That the Coshocton management resents the actions of Manager Reilly of the Zanesville team and President Scott of the league, following last Sunday's game, is putting it mildly. On one phase of the case there is unanimity of determination on the part of the Coshocton management—local fans can feel assured that the protested game WILL NOT BE PLAYED OVER regardless of consequences. The Coshocton team was given the umpire's decision and it will not be "euchered" out of the victory by Manager Reilly or President Scott on any flimsy protest.

By whose authority it spoke was not mentioned but The Times-Recorder was particulary free in its threats that if the Coshocton team did not lie down like a whipped cur and do President Scott's and Manager Reilly's bidding, it would forfeit its $100 guarantee in the league treasury and might also be kicked out of the league, bag and baggage. In answer to these threats, several members of the Coshocton management expressed themselves to the effect that it was a question whether the league would kick out Coshocton or Coshocton let loose of the league. Not only have Coshocton fans made this town by far the best in the circuit by their loyal support financially but other towns, namely Mt. Vernon, Mansfield, Cambridge and even Zanesville can be thankful for their presence and financial help in every game Coshocton played away from home this season. No, Mabel, if the worst comes and the Eastern Ohio circuit figures it would rather get along without its best town, Coshocton will try to bear up under the cruel blow.

Just where The Times-Recorder gets that "poor sportsmanship" stuff is also a mystery. Earlier in the season when Mt Vernon pulled that Sunday 5 p m stunt on Coshocton and Umpire Lawson allowed them to get away with it, Mr Scott after deliberating for weeks finally insisted to the Coshocton management that he was compelled to uphold his umpire to which the latter quietly submitted and after conceding every point in the interest of league harmony, finished the game as ordered by the league president. Now when the shoe is on the other foot and Manager Reilly of Zanesville makes a protest, Mr. Scott without even deliberating, ignores the decision of not one but two of his umpires, Umpire Farrell backing up the umpire-in-chief, Lowery.

It will be recalled that on the preceding Sunday when Coshocton traveled to Zanesville for the second game of the big series, it was found that President Scott, for some unknown reason, had left us to the tender mercies of Umpire Lawson, of Zanesville, who Coshocton fans to the number of almost a thousand insist won the game instead of Reilly's outfit. Did the Coshocton management cry to President Scott about it? The only action taken was a demand that Lawson be kept out of Coshocton for the sake of preventing disorder and any two umpires he saw fit to send would do. It was assumed, of course, that he would choose arbitrators who would be absolutely fair to both teams and Coshocton insists that that is exactly what President Scott did in picking both Farrell of Newark and Lowery of Granville. These two men have, in the judgment of the Coshocton management and fans, proven by their work thruout the season that they are not only good judges of play and conscientious workers but that they possess the even more necessary attribute, a desire to be absolutely fair and honest in all their decisions.

About President Scott's decision to have the game played over, The Times-Recorder says: "Umpire Lowery's right to award the game to Coshocton on a technicality was denied by President Scott in a clear and concise statement. "To the Coshocton fans. President Scott's statement is as clear as the league of nations. List to what he says: "You will note the rule says if the catcher runs in front of the plate, he is interfering with the batter while Umpire Lowery admits Catcher Snyder merely "straddled the plate."

If that is not splitting hairs on making an intelligent decision on a question, Germany won the big fuss. The fact remains Catcher Snyder interfered with Batter Payne, whether he "straddled the plate, slapped him on the wrist or kissed his left cheek." Umpire Lowery, the only judge, saw the play and called it. That's all. Manager Reilly, President Scott nor the "thousand Zanesville fans" have a right to change that decision, which was the judgment of Umpire Lowery. An interpretation of the rules was never in question.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Do Girl Reserves like hay-rides? Yes indeed. Seventy girls were made happy when the sun really did shine Friday afternoon and they started out on trucks covered with hay for Camp Netewa to spend the evening. Upon our arrival at Camp we found a gala appearance for the lawn was covered with Japanese laterns strung between the trees. Everyone was soon busy getting sticks to roast weiners at the camp fire. With these we had rolls baked beans, pickles, cocoa and watermellon. After supper a short business meeting was held at which time the committees were appointed for the year by the three classes represented. A great spirit of rivalry was shown and everyone entered into the new plans for the year with much enthusiasm. The rest of the evening was spent in playing games, singing and an old time taffy pull. At nine o'clock we started back on our homeward way on the hay wagon in the moonlight, singing songs and having a general good time.

Everybody left for home about ten o'clock saying they had had the most wonderful outing of the year. The following girls made reservations for the party: Florence Wood, Anna Metz, Ruth Walker, Louise Schaubacher, La Margaret Brushwood, Madeline Perry, Florence Cooper, Eleanor McKee, Ruth Parcell, Phyllis Robertson, Mary Margaret Lockard, Dorothy Barnes, Marjorie Walker, Mary Preston, Alice Shank, Lela Ricketts, La Vera Boden, Ruth Brier, Gerilda Richcreek, Mae Kuhn, Gladys Laughlin, Frances Finlay, Alice Finlay, Opal Shearn, Delores Richcreek, Ione Stevenson, Mary Pigman, Fern Stillenbauer, Kathryn Voorhies, Agnes Quinlin, Leona Dener, Kathryn Swigert, Thelma Lorenz, Frances Bechtol, Mary Heffelfinger, Theo Henderson, Ethel Staser, Leota Hagans, Opal King, Grace Lear, Naomi Nichols, Betty Wilhelm, Mary Bobner, Alice Parks, Tolleise Henderson, Marcella Johnson, Evalyn Darr, Doris Young, Ruie Wiggins, Thelma Brushwood, Helen Wilson, Lois Patton, Mildred Hahn, Audrey Welch, Mabel Robertson, Ruth Lamma, Florence Eddy, Dorothy Wendt, Oneita Barrett, Alberta Peters, Thelma Bradford, Naomi Wilson, Mrs. E. Everyone knows, of course, that we are to have our lunch stand at the Fair again this year. We'll be needing money thruout the year for conference, convention and also here at home for service work and fitting up our new club rooms to be attractive; so let's make this a big year girls. We'd be so glad for offers of help or donations of pies for the three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Come on, let's make this the best year we've ever had. By the way, we will.

ESTABLISH RIVAL DICTATORSHIPS IN GERMAN TERRITORY

Reparations Problem Again in Middle-diplomatic Circles Shocked by News of Disturbances

WASHINGTON, Sept 29. -- The feeling of optimism that had prevailed here over the entire reparations problem as a result of the ending of Germany's passive resistance in the Ruhr ended abruptly today as press and diplomatic advices brought government officials news of internal disturbances in Germany culminating in the establishment of rival dictatorships. It had been the opinion of President Coolidge and other officials of the administration that the conservative policies of the Stresemann government augured well for the opening of new negotiations between France and Germany and for the speedy settlement of the long dispute over the payment of reparations.

This government had not gone so far as to indicate its willingness to take part in a new reperations conference, but it was made plain that any efforts to reach a solution would go forward with the moral support, at least, of the United States.

Disinteration of the German empire, according to the view here, would make negotiations impossible for some time to come and would throw the whole European situation into a worse condition than it has been at any time since the world war.

Aside from the general humanitarian considerations involved, the United States desires an amicable reparations settlement for two reasons:

First, because the way would thus be opened for the payment by the allied governments of the $5,000,000,000 war debts owed the United States, and,

Second, because the establishment of a real peace would be the first step in the extension of American foreign commerce with the reopening of markets in Central Europe for this country's surplus farm products.

Although the Coolidge administration is insistent that Europe's debts be paid, hope has been about abandoned that any substantial liquidation can be accomplished so long as the powers continue to exert most of their efforts to their own money quarrels with Germany.

If the reparations problem and its attendant international difficulties could be eliminated, according to administration officials circles now proving a drag upon the market, could again be exported with the result that there would be a decided improvement in the domestic agricultural situation.

JUDGE RAPS FEE SPLITTING SYSTEM

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 29.—Denouncing as "parasites" and "panderers" the special dry agents appointed by the mayors and justices of villages surrounding Cincinnati to raid cafes and homes in the city and hale their prisoners to the village courts, Municipal Judge Joseph H. Woeste yesterday sentenced A. N. Pierson and Wm. H. Kaehling, deputy marshals of the Milford Liquor Court to 30 days in jail and fined them each $50 and costs. The dry agents were convicted of having assaulted a 17-year-old boy in a raid on the grocery store of his father.

"Pierson, you look like a young man and before this unjust law was passed earned an honest living," said the judge. "But the advent of this law changed things. It has made a parasite out of you and men like you. I can only call you a panderer. I fear the same thing will happen in Ohio that happened in New York. The enforcement of the dry laws will be repealed. The fee splitting policy as provided under the Miller Act, is certainly unjust and wrong."

Promotion Day And Rally Sunday At The Local M. P. Church

A special day will be observed Sunday at the local Methodist Protestant Sunday School. It is the annual rally day in the school and at this time the effort will be made to get all scholars back into line after the vacation period is over and also to get new scholars to attend.

A feature of the services will be a pantomime put on mostly by intermediate boys and girls. It is called "Through Knowledge to Service" and has a worth while lesson.

At this time also the promotion exercises will be held and scholars will be passed from one class to another according to age and other requirements. The work of the year opens well, according to the Rev. I. M. McVey, pastor of the church.

THE SELFISH LITTLE ANT.

ONCE upon a time, down near a lovely lake there lived a family of ants. There were so many children in this ant family that the work grew very irksome and Mama Ant, who had all she could do to keep peace, gave most of the work to the elder daughters.

Two of them were very gracious and went about their labors merrily, but the third was almost always peevish and cross.

"Had I known what would be required of me when I laid away my wings, I never would have unhooked them," she told her sisters. "I would have gone out into the world and found a quiet little spot where I wouldn't have to ask anything of anybody."

"And lived all alone, I suppose," laughed her sister. "Go on and do it now. I'll do your share of the work. But I'm sure you'll regret it."

The selfish little ant declared she never would regret going. The very next day, when she was sent out to look after the cows, she put them to pasture on a broad leaf and stole down to the water's edge.

There, smiling in the gay sunlight, floating on the surface of the water as cozy as could be, rested a beautiful water-lily castle.

"Now then!" exclaimed Missy Ant out loud. "That's the place for me. No one will think of my being there and no one will bother me." And she crawled along the weeds until she at last reached the lovely water-lily castle.

"That's the Place for Me."

My, but it was fragrant, and Missy Ant was almost dizzy with happiness. She hadn't any sand to build herself a house like the one she had been used to all her life for there was no sand to be found on the lily pad island, so she just crawled into the soft yellow center of the water-lily and was soon sound asleep.

Before the moon was very high, all the frogs in the lake gathered right near that water-lily and began their croaking, so that Missy Ant awakened and had to sit up the rest of the night.

She was glad when morning came even if the sky was cloudy. Finally, it began to rain and Missy Ant had to keep her head under the soft yellow center of the water-lily so she wouldn't get drenched. But when the storm cleared away and Missy Ant saw her lily-pad island surrounded by water on every side, her heart sank.

What should she do for food? There was none to be had on the lily and already she was beginning to feel quite empty. There was no way back to shore and Missy Ant, becoming alarmed, began to cry.

Billy Bee heard her sobs clear from the shore and flew out to see what the trouble was. Finding Missy Ant in tears, he gathered her up and flew back to shore with her.

You may believe it or not, but that was the last time Missy Ant complained. She never looked toward that lily-pad island with its perfumed, snow-white castle without trembling, and whenever she heard any of her younger brothers or sisters complaining, she just related her experience.

I overheard her one day, telling her adventure in the lily-pad castle. That's how I came to know the story.

The Way Madge Relieved Dicky's Mind About the Book.

LUCKILY I had not shut the hall door behind me. That was my first thought upon seeing Dicky, [illegible] of the [illegible] which had been [illegible]. Stepping [illegible] hall, I [illegible] made a tremendous clatter of [illegible].

Dicky advanced toward [illegible] entered. He [illegible] down, but a glance told me that he had [illegible] upon the table.

"You must be [illegible]," I [illegible] heartily, "going to market [illegible]. May I relieve you of [illegible]?"

"You'd much better [illegible]," I returned. "You look like a ghost."

"And feel like the [illegible]," he retorted.

"You need some breakfast," I said practically.

"Breakfast!" he gave a little shiver of repugnance. "I never want to see anything to eat again."

The little speech, and Dicky's exasperated tone were familiar to me. He never fails to register them after eating late in the evening. In the first months of our marriage I used to make the mistake of taking him at his word but I soon learned the futility of that procedure.

"That might be arranged," I said demurely, although I had no inclination for persiflage. "I could blindfold you."

"Get along with you!" Dicky growled good-naturedly, and then he indicated the book on the table with a careless gesture.

"Did you notice this?" he asked, and I was conscious that behind his apparent nonchalance he was watching me keenly.

"Another of Your Discoveries?"

"Why, I saw it lying there!" I said, salving my conscience with the assurance that I was speaking the exact truth. "What is it, another of your discoveries? If it is, I warn you that I shall not even open it, or read so much as a single page. You know what happened the last time I read a book on your recommendation?"

He laughed, ostensibly at the recollection of my disgust upon that memorable occasion, but in reality, I guessed, with relief at my decision. Dicky and I rarely agree in our estimate of the current fiction writers, and we have had many a spirited, though good-natured battle over novels. I congratulated myself upon my being able to use that fact to ease his mind concerning my knowledge of the book he had left upon the table.

But my [illegible] of mind was by [illegible]

Putting fruit, flat silver, dishes, cream, sugar, butter and [illegible] on my tea wagon, I wheeled it into the front room and [illegible] up the table to the fireplace where [illegible] was crackling on [illegible]. I laid it quickly, and put the electric toaster on a [illegible].

"Breakfast in courses this morning, with [illegible] waits between!" I called in [illegible] manner. "Come, Dicky, let's begin."

Protesting [illegible] that he could not eat, he seated himself at the table, but he disposed of his grapefruit [illegible], his cereal placidly, and when, after an interval of waiting which I [illegible] for him with the morning paper, I brought in a fluffy and delicately browned omelet from the kitchen, he fell upon it enthusiastically, besides stowing away two cups of coffee.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

What Lady Derby Did to Prove Herself a Good General

IN 1644 a great lady lived in her castle in Lancashire. This castle was called Lathom House.

Although it was strongly fortified with its great walls, six feet thick, and its nine [illegible] towers, each of which supported nine cannons and was surrounded by a mediaeval moat, the owner of the castle was in great danger. Protecting her were only three hundred men and servants. And opposed to this small body of men was the great parliamentary army which Cromwell had ordered to besiege and capture the castle.

The mistress of this castle was Charlotte, Lady Derby. She was a beautiful French woman, daughter of [illegible] and was [illegible]

"Your Reward Should Be That I Hang You at My Gate."

[illegible] which was hers, Lady Derby refused in the following message:

"My birth, my sex and the honor of my lord, demand that you should come to me and not I to you."

To General Fairfax this was a challenge, and immediately he led his army against the castle.

From the highest tower, Lady Derby, herself, flung out the Royalist banner, and personally directed the defence of her home.

She was so brave that one evening while she and her children were seated at the dinner table and a great cannon ball crashed into the room, she calmly arose from the table and ordered a sally on the attackers.

After this incident, General Rigby sent a letter to Lady Derby demanding her surrender. Imperiously she read the message, her face flushed and [illegible] she made the following reply:

"Your reward for this work should be that I should hang you at my gate, but you are only the foolish instrument of the traitors' rebellion. Tell the insolent rebel Rigby that he shall have neither persons, goods nor house of mine. When we are spent, we shall find a fire more merciful than he is and then my goods and my house shall burn in his sight and we all will seal our [illegible] loyalty in the flames together rather than fall into his hands."

[illegible] she kept her word and was [illegible] by her [illegible] during the [illegible], which lasted two months. Then it was [illegible] that Prince Rupert and his army were marching to [illegible]. Lady Derby had held her castle with great bravery and courage and her name is [illegible] by her countrymen as that of a true heroine.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Here Are Some Hints to Make Moving Day Easier.

FALL moving days are usually days of torment to home-loving and peacefully-inclined persons. Moving is an art. To go out well-packed means going in after an orderly fashion that makes settling easy. To do this, a system must be worked out and followed.

Professional packers who bring their own materials come high, as you pay for labor by the hour, and packing material and the rental of boxes and barrels as well as for the cartage. We can do all the packing for ourselves very efficiently with forethought and possibly the help of a good handy man by the day. All this will reduce the packing cost, though van charges are regulated by the busy season generally, unless contracts are made ahead of time.

Begin preparations by saving all the newspapers for weeks ahead of the event. Secure sugar barrels with their fitted covers. Then select strong boxes of a convenient size to handle. Books are heavy and small boxes are the more desirable, though it may take several to hold your books. Some light wood for crating will be useful if the stuff has to go very far. Old sheets or quilts, dust-sheets, paper and string, tags and some stout clothesline should be procured; then we shall be "set" to begin packing.

Line the book-boxes with newspaper. Wipe each book as it is packed, then it will be ready to set in place on arrival. All small pictures may be dusted and packed, with newspapers between them, in packages and treated. Mark these packages with stencil-brush and ink, "Glass—Handle With Care" on the outside.

Set the clock in a paper-lined box after removing the pendulum and keys, wrapping them in a paper and tying them to the clock. Leave the box uncovered, then the men will be careful where it is packed. Pictures should be crated if the distance is great. If not, send them open and the men will be responsible.

In one of the barrels, pack all of the best kitchen-ware, cleaned and covered. Glass-ware should be [illegible] wrapped and carefully packed in paper-padded boxes and left uncovered, then the men will look after it. [illegible] packing is not difficult if one proceeds carefully. Each thing is to be wrapped in a single piece of newspaper. Small things should be put into larger ones. Plates and platters may be packed on edge against the sides of the barrel, while larger things should be well wadded with paper in the center. Make the barrel as solid as possible so that things will not break by slipping about.

Slip the mattresses into gingham covers or closely-pinned old sheets. They pack better in the van in this way than when rolled. Brush and clean all sofa pillows and tuck them [illegible] in a sheet. Bed pillows should be packed in the same way, first slipping them into old cases. Do not load the drawers of chiffoniers, chests or bureaus heavily, for this makes them difficult to handle and also is wearing on them. Light things, such as little light ornaments that are fragile and easily broken may be put in them. These things if packed in pasteboard boxes have but little weight.

A strong trunk is usually best for linen and silver. The latter should be wrapped in paper and carefully packed in the trays. Cover the sewing-machine with paper, run off the band of the wheel, cover the box with paper and tie it with soft webbing string. Also, catch the drop leaf with a tie, so that it will not be snapped off. Re-cover, if it needs it, the ironing board and wrap it well in paper to keep it clean. All curtains should have been done up, all spreads and slip-covers washed and all blankets washed and cleaned before packing.

All keys should be placed in a box or basket and have small tags attached so that they can be easily found when wanted. Rugs are often sent to the cleaners and may be delivered in the new place, so they are out of the way. Small rugs may be easily rolled. If the new place is clean and redecorated and curtain poles are up and ready, while moving itself may be hard, settling will be easy.

YOUR HEALTH

How to Guard Yourself from Contracting Disease

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

IT used to be believed that some sort of mysterious influence or miasm, a force, a gas or a spirit came from a sick person or from the soil and caused the illness.

Don't you remember how you used to go across the street to keep from passing too close to a house where contagion was? Emanations of contagion were supposed to come in clouds, or to spread in circles. It was believed they reached out to envelop innocent by-standers.

No wonder people grow panicky during epidemics. A good many times, when acting as health officer, I had to hold public meetings to allay the fears of the people. When everybody understands how disease is transmitted, there will be more efficient control of disease, because efforts to confine it will be more intelligently supported by the public.

Let us see if we can formulate our knowledge of communicable or contagious diseases:

They are caused by living organisms, commonly known as germs. These organisms are real, tangible things, things which live and move. They can be seen under the microscope and recognized one from another.

Most of these organisms live in human beings. A few originate in the bodies of lower animals. But all of them live and multiply in living animals.

The only way these organisms, which are capable of producing disease, can escape from the body where they live, is through the secretions or discharges. Some leave through the urine or perspiration, some through the saliva or other secretions and others through the bowel discharges.

All discharges from persons ill with infectious or contagious diseases are dangerous. They continue to be dangerous as long as they retain warmth and moisture, necessary to the life of the contained germs.

Direct physical contact is essential to contagion. Mere presence in the neighborhood of a sick person will not result in infection. There is no "atmosphere" of danger—there must be actual contact with the discharges to get the contaminating agent.

Once I had to deal with an excited community because Board of Health nurses, without change of costume, entered and left homes where scarlet fever raged. While this would not be good practice for everybody, a trained nurse, who will religiously avoid handling any contaminated object and particularly any particle of secretion, can do this safely.

You see, the present idea is that contagion is carried by diseased persons and not by inanimate objects, like clothing or playthings.

Of course contact with the skin is not enough to contract a disease. The infective material must get to the nose, mouth or throat of the well person. Unless it enters one of the cavities of the body, unless it is rubbed into a broken skin surface, or unless it is pricked into the skin with a needle or pin or by some other accident, there is no danger of contagion.

Diseased tonsils or adenoids offer surfaces which will accept germs. Lowered vitality is another factor which promotes the possibility of infection.

Cleanliness of the hands and cleanliness of the nose, mouth and teeth are the chief means of protection against disease.

Answers to Health Questions.

P. V. L. Q.—About two years ago I was operated on for appendicitis, and since then I have been troubled with pains in my right side. Do you think it necessary for me to undergo another operation?

A.—It may be that you are suffering from adhesions in which case an operation is usually necessary. I would suggest that you go back to the doctor who operated on you for a re-examination and further treatment.

C. O. Q.—About six months ago I was operated on for appendicitis and the operation was very successful, but recently I began to feel pains in my shoulders and limbs and now my ankles are swollen. What would you advise me to do?

A.—Swollen ankles usually indicate some kidney condition. You should have your urine examined and submit the report to your physician, who will advise you about treatment after he has examined you.

• • •

D. S. Q.—Is —— harmful to use on the face every night?

A.—If you find that this does not irritate your skin, it is all right for you to use it.

J. J. R. Q.—Will you please tell me what causes dizziness? I have been troubled with this complaint for the past three years.

A.—Among the causes of this condition are constipation, indigestion, high or low blood-pressure, kidney or heart trouble and eyestrain. An examination to find the cause is necessary before treatment can be outlined.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address ALL INQUIRIES to Dr. R. S. Copeland, in care of this office.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About a Very Lovely Dinner Gown.

"LACE, lace, lace! I've never before seen such yards of lovely lace," Haidee chanted as she came out of the salon.

"Tell me about it," I urged.

"Come in here with me and see for yourself," Haidee urged. I rose from my very comfortable position in a low, easy chair and followed her back into the salon.

This is the long room on the second floor in the front of the house where Madame usually receives her customers when talking over gowns that she is going to make for them.

It is furnished in lovely fragile-looking chairs and divans upholstered in brocaded silk of soft green. But we couldn't see the soft green of the furniture for the yards and yards of lace that covered everything. Some had only a bit from the end of the bolt unwrapped and draped over a chair back, while other lengths were piled up in cloudy confusion.

"Heavenly colors!" I remarked as I viewed the brown and black and purple and green and blue lengths of loveliness.

"This is my favorite lace," said Haidee, skipping to one of the divans.

She came back toward me, trailing a cloud of black lace with glints of silver.

"Do hold still and let me see it," I begged.

"Better yet, gaze on this gown Gaby is wearing," Haidee said, pointing toward the door.

I turned to see Gaby entering in one of the smartest lace gowns I've ever had the pleasure of seeing.

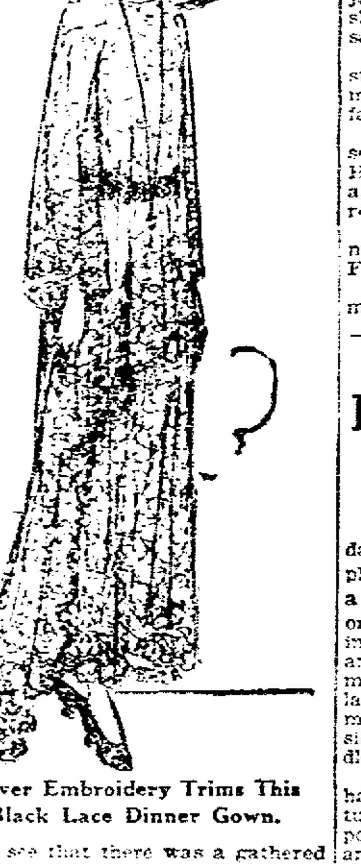
"I'm to wear this down on the first floor for a client to see," she informed us. "Is this hat all right with it?"

It was a huge black hat with black lace drooping over the brim.

"Perfectly," I answered. "But do let us have a look."

Gaby advanced slowly as if we were prospective clients. The lace was exquisite, filmy black with cobwebby lines of silver sparkling through it.

She turned about slowly and I could see that there was a gathered foundation skirt of the lace, with an overskirt that was short in front and gradually sloped down, making a short train in the back.



Silver Embroidery Trims This Black Lace Dinner Gown.

"It's too alluring for words," I declared.

"Madame just had the lace sent up two days ago, and this gown is the first from the new lot," Gaby explained.

"Don't you like the girdle?" she asked.

It was made of threads of silver caught into loose bunches all about the waistline. Before I could pass judgment Gaby extended a smartly-shod foot so I could admire her black satin and silver slippers.

"If I don't make tracks downstairs, Madame will be sending for me," she said, gliding off with a fancy dance step.

"Madame must be planning a season of lace," I remarked to Haidee as we turned our attention again to the lovely display in the room.

"She says she is going to do any number of dinner-gowns of lace for Fall and Winter," Haidee told me.

"They always look smart," I remarked. "And they wear forever."

HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

An unusually active and eventful day is forecast from the dominant planetary configurations. There is a presage of a momentous change or journey which should culminate in the most gratifying success. New and bold projects seem to be immanent and these may be manipulated to splendid advantage if the matter of finances be wisely considered. Shun speculation and handle all opportunities carefully.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of important opportunity, with new openings and large possibilities. There may be change and travel of benefit, but all money matters should be managed with a degree of careful judgment. Shun all in the nature of speculation. A child born on this day will be bold and enterprising, but may be fond of change and pleasure unless it is carefully trained.

Expert examiners have been instructed to refuse examination unless the blank is presented by the Scout upon application for examination.

Merit badge applications must hereafter be signed by the Scoutmaster, before presentation at Court of Honor for the awarding of the badge.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

By CONSTANTINE STEPHANOVE

SOFIA, Sept. 29 — Though the Turks have been given a free hand to drive away from their domain and from Constantinople, the capital, in particular, all foreigners which they are already doing by causing the expulsion of thousands of Greeks, Armenians and other alien elements, and have become again absolute masters of the ancient city, still the burning question of the day thruout Turkey is: "Should Angora or Stamboul be our capital?"

The National Council at Angora, presided over by Mustapha Pasha has already decided that Angora is to be Turkey's future capital. The grounds for this decision are obvious. The patriotic Turks argue that Angora is strategically invulnerable, as was recently demonstrated in the World War and again in the Greco-Turkish struggle. It is a purely Turkish town, far from the intrigues of European diplomacy and European destructive influences. Constantinople, ever since it has become the capital of Turkey has been Turkey's most vulnerable point and has caused, it is declared, the gradual weakening and fall of Turkish power and authority in the world.

"Constantinople will never be completely rid of the Christian and [illegible] All the nations [illegible] our greatest Mosque [illegible] St. Sophia [illegible] Mohammedans in a Christian [illegible]

"Stamboul is no more a Mohammedan city, but the greatest den of international spies, plotters, corruption and intriguers. We have [illegible] of all this in the past. [illegible] no more Stamboul [illegible] place full of Turks. It has always been a foreign town for us. It has rejoiced when we had suffered and has grieved when we rejoiced and were triumphant."

The general public opinion in Turkey is in favor of Angora as Turkey's future capital. The National Council has already decreed [illegible] immediately after that decision was taken the National Assembly passed this resolution and oath, which had to be solemnly uttered by every member of the Assembly: "I swear before Allah that I shall not follow in the path which is contrary to the happiness and salvation of my country and that I shall ever remain a faithful and loyal servant and supporter of our national sovereignty."

Outsiders, however, think that the old Turks will have to yield to expediency and that Stamboul will continue to be the capital of new Turkey also, and that the future of Turkey would depend on whether Constantinople will remain as heretofore the metropolis of the Ottoman Empire.
